THE CHAIN SHIRT

Which Saved Gen. Melikoff's Life.

The Peruvian Minister of Finance in Prison.

The English Budget Statement—Courtesies to Americans in London.

England.

LONDON, March 12.—With the object of showing the utmost courtesy to well-known visitors from America several London clubs have resolved to admit such gentlemen as honorary members for three months.

THE BUDGET.

The Conservative and Ministerial journals declare that the budget statement is satisfactory. The Daily News says that the budget is formed on a "happy-go-lucky" principle. The Times says the budget was predestined to be unsatisfactory and it will not stir the pulse of the country in favor of the Ministry.

Peru.

LONDON, March 12.—Private advices from Peru announce that Quimper, Minister of Finance, has been imprisoned and his property confiscated on account of a contract negotiated by him with the Credit Industriel of Paris recently, which the Peruvian Government repudiated. The property of Senor Rosas, one of the commissioners who negotiated the contract, was also sequestrated.

Portugal.

LISBON, March 12.—The Ministerial journal, "Progresso," referring to the rumor of the intention of the United States to found commercial colonies on the west coast of Africa, says Portugal should congratulate herself on seeing the United States approach her colonies, because that Republic is incapable of despising the rights of Portugal, but would on the contrary guard them against the encroachments by England.

Germany.

BERLIN, March 12.—The Governmental Post states that Bismarck has ordered the collection of diplomatic documents attesting the hostile intentions of Russia towards Germany. The volume will include the papers bearing upon Gortschakoff's propositions to France for the conclusion of an anti-German alliance.

Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 12.—Gen. Melikoff was saved by a chain shirt when Melodetsky attempted to assassinate him. The bullet tore a hole in the coat, but was arrested by the protecting mail.

China.

SHANGHAI, March 12.—It is reported that Chung How, late Embassador to Russia and who negotiated the Kuldja treaty, has been beheaded and that a revolt has broken out in Pekin.

Stocks and Bonds.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Publication is made of large private transactions in first mortgage bonds of the Lake Erie and Western, and Lafayette, Bloomington and Muncie, these two companies being now consolidated under the name of the Lake Erie and Western. According to report Wm. H. Vanderbilt within a day or two bought $500,000 of these bonds at 100, sellers having been the present managers of the company, who made up this amount for him. Bids in Europe for the Pacific six per cent gold loan are reported very large, and from this negotiation many bills are reasonably expected. Moreover there are in the market round lots of bankers' bills which have been borrowed by holders of stocks here, who take this method of providing themselves with time money.

All Quiet in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12.—Everything was very quiet last night. A number of ordinary meetings of workingmen's ward clubs were held, at which the Citizens' Protective Union and the arrest of Kearney were vigorously denounced. It is not learned that Kearney attended any of them. The executive committee is said to have held a meeting to-day, but nothing is known of the proceedings.

KEARNEY IN COURT.

Kearney was brought before the Police Court this morning. He stated that he was ready for trial and desired neither jury nor counsel and had no witnesses. The policeman who is the complaining witness in the case being temporarily absent looking for certain witnesses, the case was continued on motion of the prosecuting attorney until to-morrow.

Death of a West Pointer.

BALTIMORE, MD., March 12.—Gen. Henry A. Thompson, graduate of West Point in the class of 1819, and President of the National Bank of Baltimore, died to-day, age 80.

For Life.

CLEVELAND, March 12.—Noller, the parricide, was this forenoon sentenced to the Penitentiary for life.

WASHINGTON.

A Ringing Speech on the Interoceanic Question.

The Tariff on Printing Paper to be Removed—Capital Notes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.—There is authority of the very highest character for stating that the tariff on printing paper will be taken off. The subject will be considered by the Ways and Means Committee to-day, and no influence can stem the tide which has set in in favor of free chemicals.

PUBLIC REVENUES.

The Secretary of the Treasury says he intends every week to invest all revenues less the actual expenditures and a proportionate share of the accruing interest of the public debt in the purchase of 5 and 6 per cent bonds on public offers in New York.

Scarcity of Silver Coin.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.—There is a scarcity of fractional silver coin, caused by its presentation for redemption under the recent law. There are $21,000,000 such coin in the Treasury, which will be exchanged at all Sub-Treasuries for United States notes when the appropriation is made for the purpose by Congress. It will be sent free of cost in sums of $500 and upwards to any part of the country.

FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.—Senator Williams presented a joint resolution of the Kentucky Legislature, instructing the Senators from Kentucky to urge the passage of the bill reducing the salary of the President of the United States.

Senator Bruce, from the Committee on Education and Labor, reported adversely on the bill to provide for the investment of certain unclaimed pay and county moneys in the Treasury and to facilitate the education of the colored race. Indefinitely postponed.

Bills were introduced and referred:

By Senator Rollins—To provide for the ascertainment of claims of American citizens for spoliations prior to July 1, 1861.

By Senator Teller—To enable Colorado to select land under the acts of July 2, 1862, and July 23, 1866, making a grant of land for the benefit of agricultural colleges and mechanical arts.

Senator Morgan submitted a resolution calling on the Secretary of the interior for information in relation to the state of technical and industrial education in schools and colleges endowed by the Government, and in other schools, and the extent to which provision has been made for such education of females, and the number of females attending such schools. Adopted.

Senator Wallace moved when the Senate adjourn to-day it be to Monday next, out upon request of Senator Garland to allow a session to-morrow for consideration of the Hot Springs bill he withdrew the motion.

The bill for relief of the widow of Gen. Custer was indefinitely postponed.

Senator Gordon asked unanimous consent for the present consideration of his resolution for a special committee on the interoceanic canal, and it was taken up.

Senator Hill called the attention of his colleague to the fact that Senator Groome, who had offered the resolution for the appointment of a special committee before Senator Gordon offered his, was not in his seat.

Senator Williams said the subject not only presented foreign, commercial and legal questions, but might also present military and naval questions. He hoped special committees of the Senate would be appointed to consider it, because, sir, if we intend to make our declaration good it may be necessary to look into the condition of our army and navy. This, sir, is the greatest question that has been before the Senate during this session of Congress, for, let me say, sir, that the American people have made up their minds upon this subject. There may be some differences of opinion here, but the country is of one mind in this regard. The people of the United States do not intend that any foreign nation or nations shall put a Chinese wall or dig a ditch across this continent that shall stand as a barrier against their aspirations to empire or commercial supremacy upon this continent. That is the fiat and the feeling of this whole continent from the North to the South, from the East to the West, and the statesman or politician who puts himself up against this current of popular opinion will be swept away as with a rushing flood. I hope this committee will be composed of the best, most patriotic and wisest men of the Senate and that all questions connected with this subject may be referred to them.

After the debate Senators Gordon and Groome withdrew their resolutions for a special committee, and the resolution of Senator Platt, requesting the President to communicate to foreign Governments the desire of this Government to secure neutrality of any transit route across the Isthmus, was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

House.

The bill authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to deposit certain Indian trust funds in the United States Treasury in lieu of investment was passed.

The morning hour was dispensed with and Mr. McMahon reported back the deficiency appropriation bill from the Appropriation Committee. The committee recommend an amendment appropriating $800,000 for the payment of fees and expenses of U. S. Marshals and their general deputies for the present fiscal year, thus making the totol amount appropriated by the bill $1,235,530.

Mr. McMahon inquired whether four hours' debate would be sufficient.

Mr. Conger replied that if no political riders were placed upon the bill that time would be sufficient.

Mr. McMahon stated that he knew of no rider, but he understood the Printing Committee proposed to offer an amendment relative to the election of Government Printer. The bill was referred to the committee of the whole; and without coming to any understanding relative to the length of the debate,

Mr. McMahon moved to go into such a committee, pending which motion the Speaker laid before the House a message from the President transmitting the dispatches recently received from the Consul-General at Shanghai on the subject of slavery in China. Referred.

Mr. McMahon was then agreed to and the House went into a Committee of the Whole. Mr. Carlisle in the chair.

JOHN SHERMAN.

A Letter Reiterating that He is Still a Candidate.

CHICAGO, March 12.—The following letter received by M. L. Scudder of this city explains itself:

WASHINGTON, March 10.—MY DEAR SIR: Your letter of the 7th inst., in which you express your strong dissent to my retiring from the Presidential race, is received. I never for a moment have contemplated such a course, and the rumor you speak of was no doubt promptly denied. The first public mention of my candidacy was in the reference drawn from my letter to Hon. Mr. Haskin, of New York, in which I stated what I would seek to do in case of my nomination and election. Since that time I have been considered by the people as a candidate and have so regarded myself, with the purpose neither to press any one to support me nor to decline such friendly aid as is offered me. This position I intend to occupy to the end. I do not think it necessary for me to belittle or arraign General Grant, Senator Blaine, or any one else, nor will I use my official position to promote my candidacy.

Very truly yours,

JOHN SHERMAN.

NEW YORK.

Coming Sports—The Lost Steamer Hindoo—The Irish Famine.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 12.—The absence of entries by Belmont, Withers or the Brothers Lorillard at Saratoga shows the field of operations marked out for them in Washington, Baltimore, Jerome and Monmouth Parks and Coney Island. Deadhead Hill, a famous resort of impoverished sportsmen at every race meeting at Jerome Park, has been purchased and added to the possession of Jerome Park. The Coney Island racing card is the strongest ever issued on the continent.

OUR JOCKEY CLUB.

The Spirit of the Times says: "Those in control of the horses in active training for the approaching season in the Mississippi Valley should bear in mind the list of valuable stakes announced by the St. Louis Jockey Club."

THE LOST HINDOO.

The captain of the lost steamer Hindoo says the disaster was caused first by the breaking of the steering gear, followed by shipping of a heavy sea, which carried away the hatches used for ventilation in bad weather and broke the skylights over the engine, thus letting the water into the hold and the engine-room. A panic was caused among the cattle, and their rushing to one side of the vessel threw it over, and the large volume of water which had flowed in prevented her from righting, notwithstanding the cattle were thrown overboard, and it is supposed the cargo must have shifted after the vessel went on beam ends.

THE IRISH FAMINE.

The Tribune says of the famine in Ireland: When men, women and children are reduced to the last stages of nakedness and destitution, where families are huddled together without fire, food, clothing or bedding, either in miserable huts or the former abodes of animals, where thousands and thousands are begging the humblest and cheapest food that can be supplied for human use—where all this extends and there is little prospect of improvement in the future, there is surely much still to be done in active relief.

NOTES.

James R. Keene has been elected a member of the London Turf Club.

Of the eighteen men entered for the O'Leary belt, four have a record better than Rowell's and nine have beaten 500 miles.

The Duke of Beaufort, accompanied by his youngest son, Lord Fitzroy and Sir John Rae Reed, makes another visit to this country.

FLAMES.

A Flour Mill and Contents Burned.

CINCINNATI, March 12.—The flour mills of Baker, Johnson & Co., at Shoals, Ind., was burned yesterday afternoon, together with four thousand bushels of wheat, one hundred and fifty barrels of flour, a lot of corn, bran, etc. Loss, $15,000; no insurance.

The Telegraph War.

CINCINNATI, March 12.—In the Supreme Court this afternoon a restraining order was granted on application of the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company excluding the American Union Telegraph Company and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad from using the wires along its line, now operated by the Atlantic and Pacific Company.

O'Leary—Weston.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12, 9 a. m.—Score: O'Leary 381; Weston 374. By 11 o'clock last night Weston had reduced the gap to five miles, since which he has taken more rest than O'Leary. The interest in the match, which has been effected by local agitation, is now increasing, owing to the closeness and evident fairness of the contest.

Railroad Collision in Wyoming.

RAWLINS, WY., March 12.—During a heavy snow storm early this morning the overland passenger trains Nos. 3 and 4 collided at Red Desert Station, fifty miles west of here. Martin, engineer of train No. 4, will probably die from his injuries. No passengers were injured.

Grant in Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 10, VIA BROWNSVILLE, March 12.—General Grant and party were elegantly entertained by the authoeities and people of Pueblo. The General intends to sail for Galveston on the 18th. Minister Foster and wife leave with General Grant.

Applications for Pardons.

HARRISBURG, PA., March 12.—An application will be made for pardons in the cases of Kemble, Salter, Petroff, Rumberger and Crawford. It is thought a special meeting of the Board of Pardons will be called.

Selling Liquor to a Drunkard.

Mrs. Mary Davis, of Cheltenham, took out a warrant for the arrest of Daniel Michaels of that place, this morning, for selling liquor to an habitual drunkard. David Davis, the husband of the woman taking out the warrant, is alleged to be a very hard drinker, and it is claimed that Michaels had knowledge of this infirmity. In spite of that fact Michaels sold Davis some of the ardent and continues to dispose of the liquid poison at the regular price of 10 cents per drink. The warrant will be served during the day, and the case will come up before Judge Cady next week.

AFTER-ECHOES.

Shields Comments Upon Filley's Action,

While the Suave Rosenblatt Discourses of Preetorius, Henderson and Others.

As published in yesterday's POST-DISPATCH the Republican State Committee deposed Mr. Geo. H. Shields from the chairmanship, substituting Chauncey I. Filley. Mr. Shields then withdrew from the meeting, which, after perfecting its organization, issued a call for the State Republican Convention to meet at Sedalia on the 14th of April. Late last evening Mr. Shields, who claims that the Filley party had acted illegally, and did not properly represent the Republican party, issued a counter call for a meeting of the Republican State Committee at Jefferson City on March 19, with the intention of calling another State Convention. Thus there is every appearance of a split in the Republican camp. It was stated in the stalwart organ this morning that prominent Republicans would bring pressure to bear upon Shields to revoke the call he had issued.

SHIELDS TALKS.

A POST-DISPATCH reporter waited on Mr. Shields at his office and found him in converse with ex-Senator John B. Henderson, his law partner, and Mr. Milo Blair, of Sedalia.

"Are you likely to withdraw the call you have issued?" asked the reporter.

"No, sir, I am not, I do not intend revoking it, and there are not influences enough which could be brought to bear on me to make me do so."

"How can you secure the attendance of the committee?"

"I say a majority of the committee is with me. Yesterday's meeting was simply run by Chauncey I. Filley and a crowd of bummers. Why should they want to depose me. Simply became I am an anti-Grant man. I told them that if they could point to any action of mine by which I overrode the wishes of the committee I would resign, but they would not do so."

Just at this juncture a telegraph Mercury delivered a telegram. Mr. Shields read it aloud, all but the signature. "The best way to settle our difficulties is for both you and Filley to resign." So ran the telegram.

"Mr. Filley," remarked Senator Henderson, "reminds me of a certain class of attorneys who always presume that the opposing witnesses are their personal enemies."

Mr. Shields again iterated his firm determination not to withdraw his call, and also expressed the conviction that he would secure the meeting of a properly organized convention, which would send delegates and gain admission to the Chicago Convention. Mr. Shields further remarked that he was not deposed by even a majority of the committee. The full number of members was twenty-eight, of whom twenty-four were either present or represented by proxies. The motion to remove him received only twelve votes, which included Mr. Filley's.

Rosenblatt Talks.

The reporter next called upon Collector Rosenblatt and greeted him with the title of "the great motion maker," as a reference to yesterday's proceedings shows that he offered almost every motion—over twenty in number. Mr. Rosenblatt smiled and welcomed the POST-DISPATCH representative.

"What do you think of Mr. Shields's call, Mr. Rosenblatt?"

"Oh, he will never carry it into effect. When Mr. Shields gets cool about this thing he will probably withdraw his little rash advertisement in the Globe-Democrat of this morning. He could not get one member of the committee to meet him in Jefferson City—not one. It is simply ridiculous."

"He claims Mr. Filley voted to remove him?"

"Mr. Filley did not vote. He voted as proxy for Mr. Dickinson, but not for himself. He offered to vote for Mr. Shields if Shields would vote for him, but Shields refused to vote for Mr. Filley. The test vote of the feeling of the committee was upon confirming the action of the committee at Jefferson City, and it stood 18 to 6. And Shields himself was one of the six who voted to confirm the minutes: so his following was reduced to five. If Shields had kept his temper he would not have lost the chairmanship. I was opposed to ousting him. But when he began calling a man a liar and holding himself personally responsible he did not act as a chairman of the committee should."

"Was the feeling unanimously for Grant?"

"There were only three delegates who were not for Grant as first choice, and that, as we gleaned, is the feeling throughout the State. Why, Shields will absolutely not get a man to meet him at Jefferson City. I don't think Shields himself, upon reflection, will insist upon it, but as a good Republican he will act with the committee. No one doubts his Republicanism."

"How about the German Republicans?"

"If they are good Republicans they will agree to support the nominee of the Republican convention. There is no necessity for a split or anything of that sort. If they want to start an institution as they did in '64 at Cleveland, or in '70 at Jefferson City, they of course will go on."

"What about Dr. Preetorius?"

"Mr. Preetorius will support the nominee of the Republican party even if it be Grant. Preetorius is as good a Republican as anybody. He appears to have a crotchet in his head which is gradually dissipating. He will certainly support the nominee. In 1872, when the Westliche Post supported Greeley for President, Mr. Preetorius withdrew temporarily from that paper, as he was unwilling to support Greeley, and if he voted at all he voted for Grant in 1872."

"What do you think of Mr. Henderson's Republicanism?"

"According to his speech he was opposed to Grant in 1868 and in favor of him in 1872. It appears to me he was in favor of Grant at the wrong time. What Mr. Henderson is going to do no man knows."

"Mr. Filley and the Globe-Democrat are now harmonized?"

"They are in greater accord than they have been for a great many years. They appear to pull in the same groove."

"What do you think of Henderson's speech?"

"It is full of platitudes. It is a speech gotten up with care, of course, and no doubt an able one."

"Why didn't the Grant organ print a full report of it?"

Mr. Rosenblatt smiled and said, "They have a right to run the paper to suit themselves."

Second District Police Court.

There were only nine cases on the docket in this court to-day. Clarra Harris was fined $10 on the charge of being a prostitute. Daniel McComb had a like amount figured up opposite his name on the docket for being drunk on the street. Mollie and Henry Smith, both colored, and man and wife, were arrested for disturbing the peace. As they both pleaded guilty to the charge, and each refused to make a statement against the other, Judge Dennison assessed $5 against each of the names. The other cases were continued.

"SWEET JOHANNA."

She Refuses to Come to America, and Her Husband Asks for a Divorce.

Isaac Kaufmann to-day files a suit for divorce against his wife, Johanna Kaufmann, alias Hancha Kaufmann. He states in his petition that he was married to Johanna in the Grand Duchy of Baden, Germany, in 1871, and in 1874, with her full consent, emigrated to America to better his fortune. He had while living with her treated her with love and affection, and there was one child born of the union. Some time after he had come to St. Louis he wrote to Johanna to come to him and sent her the money to pay her passage. But she did not come. He continued to write to her and to send her money. He wrote some forty letters in all and waited long and patiently, but still Johanna did not come. Finally, he concluded that she did not intend to come at all, and hence this application for a final severance of the bonds of matrimony.

A Case of Variola.

Dr. Lips to-day reported to Health Commissioner Francis Veronia Jenny, a servant girl, twenty years of age and employed at No. 17 North Third street, as suffering from an attack of variola. Drs. Robinson and Carson of the Dispensary examined the case and decided that it was a mild type of that disease. The girl consented to go to Quarantine, to which place she was sent in charge of Dr. Renick. This is the first genuine case of smallpox in any form that has been found in this city this year. Last week several cases were reported, but upon examination proved to be chicken pox and measles.

ABOUT TOWN.

THE St. Louis Spirit will appear as usual upon Saturday next.

IT is estimated that one out of every eight of the white population of St. Louis has given up the ze-ze-zaz puzzle.

SNOWBALLING has suddenly become fashionable among the gamins, to the utter routing of tops which stand on their heads.

THE celebration of the sixth anniversary of the St. Louis Lodge No. 13 Knights of Honor takes place this evening at Uhrig's Cave.

THE car lines throughout the city have been altogether deranged by the storm, and as a consequence processions of five and six cars at a time are no uncommon occurrence.

THE boys at engine house No. 4, Twenty-third and Wash streets, mourn the loss of a large black setter dog. The dog carries a license marked F. D., and the owners hope their lost canine will be returned to them by the finder.

THE James Literary and Dramatic Union of the Christian Brothers' College will give a literary and musical entertainment Tuesday evening, March 16, at the College Hall. Music has been especially arranged for the occasion by Prof. Frank Gecks.

A HORSE attached to a buggy belonging to Kelley & Cullen's livery stable ran away yesterday afternoon. When on Seventh street near Wash, the buggy collided with a telegraph pole and was damaged to the extent of $20. The horse became detached from the buggy, when it was caught by a fireman.

YESTERDAY afternoon as two young ladies, Miss Davis and Stoker were coming to the city from Cheltenham in a spring wagon, the horse attached to the vehicle became frightened and ran away. The wagon upset when near the old Manchester road, and threw the occupants to the ground. Neither of them was hurt. The horse was caught soon afterwards without doing any damage to the wagon.

A MOTIVE.

Some trifling act of small self-sacrifice—
Large to her littleness—the child had done,
Then sought reward in smile of mother's eyes.
Those eyes grew dim, and this the praise she won:
"You have pleased God, my child!"

A shadow falls across the eager brow;
White lids down drop o'er eyes of angel blue:
Trembles the mouth, the glad voice falters now—
"I did not do it to please God, but you!
I can not see his face!"

Ah! lives there one who, with cold chiding, could
Rebuke such weakness of the tender heart?
Whence comes a knowledge of God's Fatherhood
Which does not first in mother's loving start?
Through earth's pure loves to Gods!

GRANT IN MEXICO.

Visit to Orizaba—Sights, Costumes and Bull-Tailing.

[Orizaba Cor. Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

A visit to the Alemeda was next in order. The city is well situated for comparative effect. The Alemada is as public Jardin des Plantes, in which various kinds of trees are the most conspicuous ornaments, though there are flowers of all kinds growing there also. In the center are two fountains from which the people draw their supply of water, and the brown native women are there at all times, dipping up and carrying away the liquid in immense earthen jars on their heads. In the midst of this the visitor has only to cast his eyes up the bleak and barren mountains for the contrast. One stands here in the tropics, while apparently but a few rods away rears the cloud-clapped Borega, where grow the grasses and shrubs of another zone. If there is such a thing as a town nestling among the hills, then this city nestles, for it is built at the very foot of the grandest range of the Sierras.

BEAUTIFUL TROPICAL GARDEN

While the travelers were paying a visit to these places, two great coaches, or omnibuses, were brought out, and as soon as the vehicles were filled we were off to the picnic, for that was the style of entertainment of the day. It looked a little strange at first to offer such carriages for the use of the guest of the nation; but it was soon evident that anything less substantial would have fared badly. The streets and road leading out of the town are as rough as huge cobble-stone pavements can make them. There was a constant rocking and jumping, with now and then a pass with the gutter that runs in the middle of the street, in which it seemed doubtful whether the six mules that drew the machine would conquer or the ditch prove impregnable to the assault. The mules always got the best of it, however, though in doubtful cases the travelers alighted with great agility, being in a good humor, and willing to do anything to help along, except to assist in carrying over the coach.

An hour was spent in this questionable style of locomotion, past groves of oranges, gardens of bananas, and thickets heavily hung with coffee, and the first stop was made for a short walk to the cataract called Rincon Grande. The fall is one of great beauty. The name signifies the great corner, and "corner" describes its situation well. A river winds down a deep canon till it reaches the spot where two mountain slopes just close up to each other, forming two sides of a square almost, and at the angle the water makes its leap into the bed. It is a boisterous torrent. It acts as though its banks were too narrow, and each particle was crowding its neighbor to get out first. It comes tumbling down in a foaming, that, in its hurry, seems to have worked itself up to a white heat. After seventy-five feet of tortuous trouble, it finally settles on its new level and spreads out with an air of content over a broad, pebbly highway, over which it goes on to the next perplexing "corner."

SPLASHING MASS,

To the omnibus again! More jolting and bracing on the part of the passengers, and throwing of small stones, whipping, and excitement generally above our heads. The road was full of Indians. The men wore three garments, as near as could be determined from a passing inspection—a straw hat, a cotton shirt, and pants do. They have an economical way of making their pants last by wearing them half at a time. The part these fellows sported reached from the waist rather more than two-thirds of the way to the knees, suggesting the probability that the rest of the pattern was at home, and would be utilized when the garment now in use was no longer tenable. The women took no heed for the hat. Many of them wore a huge crock, or a broad band, to which was suspended a sack filled with almost anything from a baby to a pig. Then they had a white garment, covering part of the body, but not all, for it was made according to an extremely fashionable cut, such as society ladies in more enlightened lands are ashamed to wear except at balls, where they are sure to be admired. For the rest, wore chiefly a very scant skirt, not too long for comfort. Such are the people who outnumber all the rest in Mexico, three to one. They are still a simple, primitive race, whose wants are few and intentions good except when excited, the dominant class for political ends, for they are all citizens and have their vote if they choose to exercise the privilege.

THESE DEVOTED SQUAWS

The next stopping place was the sugar hacienda of San Antonio. It is little different from those described in Cuba, except that the process of manufacture is more antiquated and less efficacious, comparatively little of the more approved modern machinery being employed.

The religion was as primitive as the manufacturing. In the wall about the hacienda was a little niche, opening toward the road. Here was a sacrifice to an idol in precisely the same form as the forefathers of these Indians employed before the white men came into their country and changed the names of all their gods. They used to offer flowers and fruits to a deity of an unpronounceable name. Now there were flowers brought devoutly, and with the most careful adoration were placed in and about the niche where hung a picture of St. Anthony, the patron of the valley.

The next advance took us to the scene of the crowning point in the entertainment of the day. A little plateau of, perhaps, fifty acres was crossed by the vehicles to the farther side, where was drawn up in dress-parade the Seventeenth Infantry, finely equipped, and with the air of veterans. The uniform of the Mexican soldiery, that is, the best troops, is of dark blue, trimmed with red, and looks extremely well. They carry Remington rifles. Leaving the coaches, the visitors were conducted down a steep, winding road, just made, evidently, and were at once ushered upon a scene that was a surprise indeed. At the foot of the ravine was a small level space where the luxuriant undergrowth of vines and brush had been cleared out, and under the thick buttonwood trees was built a bower, and beneath it was spread a table, magnificent in its array of china and plate. The pavilion that covered it was worthy of admiration. It showed for, though fifteen feet high, covered with a heavy thatch of bamboo foliage, hung with ponderous wreaths and festoons of leaves, the fabric stood firmly under the strain without a particle of iron in its construction. Like the Temple, it had been built without the sound of hammer. Every part was bound to its component by withes and vines, and the architecture was complete. Skirting the cleared space where stood the bower, on the one hand was the hill, on the other the river, with mountains rising to the sky.

Now came something new, the "bull-tailing," a sport peculiar to Mexico, and one that is a compromise in place of the scarcely less barbarous bull-fight. On the plateau where the regiment stood in line had gathered perhaps one hundred and fifty horsemen. Then forty bulls were driven in, and corralled in a corner along two sides of the lot. There was a great deal of ordering and preparing of various kinds to be gone through with. Lassoes were loosed and given a few preparatory swings; in fact anything was done to gratify the delight of the Mexican for exhibition of his equestrian accomplishments. At last all was ready, although nothing had been done, except talk loud and rush madly about for an hour. Two or three young fellows ride into the herd and cut off a bull from his companions. He is as wild as a deer, and away he goes like a flash. Now there is a grand rush.

A THUNDERING OF HORSES' FEET,

a crackling and snapping of the long dry grass, and the leaders are upon the bull. A long-armed rider reaches over and grabs for the tail of the fleeing animal, but he veers suddenly and misses the mark. There are a dozen others in hot pursuit, and after several attempts one of them seizes him. A long, silver-spangled lasso is thrown over the tail of the bull, and, as the rider braces himself firmly in the saddle and sinks the spurs into his horse's flank, the animal is thrown in a twinkling, and goes rolling over and over in the grass. The bull was done for. His leg was broken, but no one stopped to look after him, but charged another trying to escape. Once in the melee a man was thrown. Another quickly threw the lasso over the head of the bull, who was leaving the scene on a run. He was moving so rapidly, however, and was so powerful, that he brought the lariat straight with a snap, and threw his captor, horse, rider and all rolling over each other on the grass. It was an exciting scene, but General Grant observed the bull with the broken leg, and another animal bayoneted by the soldiers, and, probably thinking that his presence caused the continuation of the cruelty, asked the Mayor to drive home, and the "bull-tailing" was over. "I never saw this sport before, and I shall never see it again," he remarked on his way back.

"THE SALVATION ARMY."

The Advance Guard of a Great Missionary Organization.

[New York Special to Cincinnati Gazette, 11.]

Among the immigrants who arrived by the steamship Australia, from London, to-day, were eight persons, one man and seven women, dressed in a peculiar uniform, with red bands around their hats, and the inscription, in gilt letters, "The Salvation Army." They carried two silk flags. Their coats (loose patrol cloaks) were trimmed with red cloth, and on the collar was the letter "S," in gold for Captain, and red for Lieutenant. Their names and titles were G. S. Kailton, Commissioner for America, and Sisters Capt. Westbrook, and Lieuts. Coleman, Evans, Morris, Pearson, Shaw and Price. They attracted much attention by their singing, prayers, and religious services while in Castle Garden.

Commissioner Kailton said: "We come here for the purpose of extending the work of the 'Salvation Army,' and will make our headquarters in New York.'

"The organization is an army of men and women mostly belonging to the working classes, and many who have been brought to Christ by its instrumentality from lives of immortality and ruffianism, and who are now glad to spend all their leisure time in making known that salvation to others. A Methodist minister was led to establish the mission by noticing the immense multitudes in London who went to no place of worship, and for whose conversion no special efforts were made. He took a stand, alone, in the open air, in the east end of London, in 1865, and in 1879 had enlisted 122 corps, under command of 195 officers. They were using for services, weekly, 148 theaters, music halls, warehouses and other buildings, and were holding open air services at the rate of 45,000 annually, and indoor services at the rate of 60,000. There were 257 persons employed as officers, ministers, missionaries, colporteurs and Bible women, and 3,256 others ready to do service at any time. Our work is not sectarian, since we seek those who have no religion, and our service is that of the early Methodists so far as doctrines and principles are concerned, but our form of service is what might be called here an experience meeting; it is not a society of unruly religionists, defying or rushing into conflict with order, law, and society, but an army for missionary purposes, and we hope to convert workers here that we can send all over the United States." The flag or banner has a red ground, with a blue border, and in one corner is a small American flag. In the center of the flag is a yellow ground, representing the sun, upon which are the words "Blood and Fire," "New York, No. 1."

Dogs as Animal Tamers.

[From the New York Sun.]

Charles Rice died recently in Berlin, Prussia, from injuries inflicted on him several months ago by a royal Bengal tiger, in whose cage he was at the time. Most of the wild beasts belonging to him arrived in New York on the steamship Rhein, and were taken to the stables of Charles Reiche & Brother, Tenth and Hudson streets, Hoboken, last Monday. It is known that the mere presence of an animal in the cage of others of different species, no matter how savage or wild they may be, will sometimes prevent them from fighting. Why this is so animal tamers can offer only theories in explanation. It is said that tigers and lions in the jungle will run from the presence of a dog as they do from that of a man, unless pressed by hunger or standing in defense of offspring. Mr. Rice, before his death, as an experiment, and without much hope of success, introduced a large dog, a cross between a mastiff and a bull terrier, into a cage containing two entirely untamed polar bears and a Russian black bear. The effect surprised him. The dog immediately asserted a mastery over his companions, although any one of them could have killed him in two minutes. He seemed to feel the necessity of preserving the upper hand, and of not letting any one of them imbrue his teeth in warm blood. As soon as trouble threatens the peace-maker has but to show his teeth and growl in order to restore harmony. Mr. Reiche says he does not know of any other case where the native fierceness of a polar bear has been quelled. Mr. Rice, before his death, used to enter the cage with this happy family and perform with them, though he did not dare to do so before the dog was introduced. The four brutes traveled in the same cage across the Atlantic, and are yet together. With them, in the Rhein, came some African elephants, yaks, an Egyptian ibex, African deer, kangaroos and monkeys.

Utilizing the Blind.

[C. K. Callagher in New York Herald.]

There are a great many blind persons in this State who are graduates of two schools for the blind at New York and Batavia. These persons have been compelled to leave these institutions, having been furnished with a trade and with implements therefor. But it has always been evident that no amount of instruction or training can place them in position to compete with such as are possessed of the full use of their natural sense of vision. Why should not something be done by the State to establish a means of employment for the industrious blind within its territory? Such institutions have been established and are in successful operation in Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dublin, Cork, Liverpool, London, and by the generosity of private contributions Pennsylvania has a working home for the blind established which is substantially self-sustaining. The State of New York by appropriating a small sum for the establishment of such an institution for the blind, furnished with the necessary appurtenances to enable them to work at their trades, and connected with a home where they could board, paying a reasonable sum for their maintenance from their earnings, would much relieve their present condition. Such an institution placed under the management of competent trustees or managers would certainly be a self-sustaining institution, and probably be a source of revenue to the State. The blind throughout the State of New York call for an expression of public sentiment in their behalf. They want to work, and ask the people to enable them to procure legitimate employment. They ask to be considered not paupers, but people anxious to make their own living by the sweat of their brow under the fostering and charitable eye of the State.

A Yale Student's Invention.

[From the New Haven Palladium.]

The junior class has a prodigy. T. P. Osborne, of this city, has made an invention for bolting flour by the application of frictional electricity, which he has patented, and for the right of it he has already been offered $50,000.

MORE FAMINE.

A District in Brazil Worse Off Than Ireland.

[From the Boston Herald.]

No famine of late years has been so severe and protracted as that which has existed in the northern provinces of Brazil, and of which we have from time to time had distressing accounts. The "famine district" lies between the rivers Parahyba and San Francisco, and is known as the Sertao. The seasons are divided into the dry and rainy, but the country is subject to periodic droughts. The present drought—for it has not yet ended—began in 1877, with the entire failure of the usual rains. The crops failed and the cattle died for want of food and water. By July of that year one-third of the population were without sustenance; by November nine-tenths of the cattle in that vast pastoral region had died, and the famished poor were without number. "The whole country was dried up so that not a green leaf or a blade of grass could be seen, except along a few fertile hillsides." The drought continued through the year 1878, and then the people who had survived became frightened, and there was a great exodus, 500,000 leaving one province alone, and at least 150,000 of them dying on the road. Great camps of fugitives were formed along the coast, and particularly about Fortaleza, a city of some 25,000 inhabitants. More than 100,000 refugees crowded into it. Fever and small-pox broke out among them, and they died by scores and hundreds, the death rate from small-pox alone footing up as high as 808 per day. This tremendous exodus and the indescribable sufferings of the wretched fugitives at last woke up the sleepy Government, and an extraordinary credit of $30,000,000 was voted for their relief, and was paid by an issue of paper money, not worth much because of the poor financial condition of Brazil. Mr. Smith visited Fortaleza and the deserted province of Ceara, and confirms all that has been reported of this unprecedented calamity, and now he is in receipt of letters from a Brazilian nobleman, now secretary of the province—and to whose philanthropical work alone the saving of 10,000 lives is credited—in which he says the drought continues, and the state of things is worse than it was when Mr. Smith was there. The Government is still feeding 250,000 people, who are employed in various public works, laboring for the mere subsistence it can give them. Out of a population of 900,000 in the province of Ceara alone, 200,000 have died of starvation and 300,000 of pestilence. Of the survivors, two-thirds are fed at public expense. But the worst is to come if Government aid is withdrawn, as it is reported it soon will be. The treasury has been drained and credit exhausted. The future for the surviving population of Ceara, and of other famine-stricken provinces, is appalling, and unless the drought is broken, or relief comes from abroad, the entire population will perish.

Latest About Tilden's Health.

[From the New York Tribune.]

Mr. Tilden seems to be in good condition for the coming campaign, so far as health is concerned. A gentleman who recently visited him at No. 15 Gramercy Park says that he appears better than at any time before in several years; that his movements are sprightly, and although his voice is still husky and can hardly be called more than a whisper, it is distinctly audible at a distance of thirty feet. But Mr. Tilden still retains the habit of coming close to a person with whom he is conversing. He spends much of his time in his library. He still maintains his practice of taking exercise on horseback, and a pleasant day hardly passes without Mr. Tilden's appearing in the avenues or park. He has taken a great fancy for a favorite bull dog which is less than a year old. Occasionally Mr. Tilden visits his law office at No. 12 Wall street, where a dingy little sign bears the name "S. J. Tilden." Last Saturday Mr. Tilden was seen strolling down Nassau street. Only a few of the persons he met turned to look at him, and his face seemed unfamiliar to most of the hurrying, busy throng. He paused for some time looking over the worn volumes displayed upon the sidewalk in front of a bookseller's store, and picked up several with an appearance of interest and looked upon the title-pages and turned the leaves. It is not known whether he was looking for "The History of an Unsuccessful Claimant" or the "Lives of the Presidents of the United States."

New Styles in Parasols.

[From the New York Post.]

An exhibition was made yesterday by a New York establishment of their parasols designed for the coming season. A distinguishing feature of their new parasols is the reduction in the number of the ribs—twelve now being used in place of sixteen, as last year. The ribs are red, and the lining, which is either of plain or changeable colored silks, is placed between the ribs and cover. Much changeable colored silk will will also be used in the covers. One of the prettiest of these silks is called "sunset" shade. The covers are of bright rich hues to match the new materials in dress goods. The borders are sewed on, or woven into the goods. In place of an elastic for securing the parasol when closed, an ivory ring is provided. A ball tassel serves as an ornament The parasols are trimmed with rich chenille fringes or with cashmere laces in which colors to match the cashmere shawls are used. The sticks are mostly of carved natural woods, but some very rustic ones are unvarnished and have beetles or flies resting on them. Owls' heads are a design for carved handles made of black or gray Siamese horn. Novel handles are of metal or China, in Japanese designs. Some beautiful hand-painted China handles were shown which cost as much as $4 each. Many of these parasols have a ribbon rosette tied to the handle and another to match at the top of the parasol. The goods exhibited showed excellent taste.

Patti's Shocking Dress.

[Paris Letter in the New York Times.]

The year 1880 will be for Mme. Patti the death song of the swan, and, if any one doubts her waning popularity, let him read the criticisms of the fashionable dailies upon her toilets. Nothing kills so quickly or so certainly in Paris as ridicule, and seriously speaking, no woman who respects herself would have ventured—so say Parisian experts—on such gowns as she sported in "Violetta." She ought to know by this time how Camellia ladies dress. Why, then, did she call upon Austrian bad taste for costumes which confided to Laferriere or Worth would have been irreproachable! The French are indulgent over minor peccadilloes; they will forgive the infraction of the entire decalogue, but Venus herself would be hissed if she should appear with cabbage roses as big as a soup-plate embroidered on the back of a ball dress. Two or three more such outrages on fashion, and the iconoclasts will begin to demolish the idol, although she has a chance in her favor in the indignation certain to be aroused by the production of Wagner's operas, now contemplated by the limited in number, but extremely noisy, sect of which this composer is the prophet and pontiff.

Patti in Paris.

[Letter to the New York Tribune.]

Patti goes out to drive daily in the Bois de Boulogne. She is in excellent health and spirits, and makes her own price at the houses of the wealthy bankers where she is asked to sing. When Madame Hirsch observed that 15,000 francs was a high price for a single song, Patti answered that she was obliged to settle, in addition to what he has already got out of her, 40,000 francs a year on the Marquis de Caux, in return for an authorization for her to appear in a Parisian theater. At Gustave Rothschild's she will earn at a morning concert 25,000 francs. She does well to exact high payment. Though her voice seems to have gained in power and richness, she feels that she is about to enter the short-lived, if glorious, Indian summer of the lyric artist's existence.

Working by Electric Light.

[From the New York Mail, 9th.]

The novel sight of carpenters, stone-cutters and masons working on a building at night was seen on Saturday evening last on Twenty-fourth street near Eighth avenue, the means of illumination being furnished by two immense electric lights of 3,000 candle light power each. The building upon which the mechanics were employed is a three-story addition to the large establishment of Ehrich Brothers. The foundation stone was laid about a week ago, and the building is to be finished on or before April 1, so as to be available for the spring opening. The addition has a frontage 50 feet on West Twenty-fourth street, and a depth of about 70 feet, joining the Eighth avenue store, which already comprises six buildings under a single roof. The two electric lamps used absorb the force of two generators, each run at an expense of three and a half horse power, supplied by an ordinary hoisting-engine of eight-horse power, without regulator. The light fluctuated a little, owing to the irregular action of the engine, but the men declared that it was nearly equal to daylight for working purposes. The lamps are suspended on cables about thirty feet from the surface, and so arranged that each obviates the shadows cast by objects intercepting the blaze of its fellow.

The Great Disturber.

[From the New York Herald.]

One of the most interesting theories advanced by modern sciences is that which holds the planet Jupiter and one or two other prominent members of the solar system responsible for Kearneyism, Nihilism, Parnellism, and the performances of a Democratic Congress. At one point in his orbit Jupiter is about 46,000,000 miles nearer the sun than he is when swinging along on the back-stretch. As he wheels in out of the cold and approaches the judges' stand, it has been observed that the spot on the sun's face begin to increase in number and magnitude, and that after he passes under the wire and sets out for more remote astronomical spaces the spots gradually diminish and disappear until the sun's face is comparatively clean once more. As Jupiter manages to get around to his perihelion pretty regularly, this sun-spot wave can be depended on to reach its maximum in periods or rather more than eleven years. It has been observed, further, that there are secular variations in the volume of the wave, something like a spring tide in spots recurring about once in fifty-six years, at which time Saturn and some smaller planets have been detected bunching up with Jupiter in a suspicious manner around the sun. Altogether the big planet appears to be clearly implicated in the spots, and there is good reason to believe that Saturn and the rest are inclined to give him occasional aid and comfort.

Now the spots are the hottest portions of the solar disc, or at all events the more spotted the disc the hotter the sun. It follows, therefore, that in every cycle of eleven years we experience a series of colder years and warmers years. As the solar heat diminishes there is less evaporation and a consequent dearth of rain; crops fail, distress follows, and then come popular discontent, revolutionary uprisings, and periods of demoralization during which California conventions frame crazy constitutions, Democratic legislatures plot to steal the State of Maine, and advanced thinkers in Russia blow up the winter palace of the Czar. There is not much encouragement in reflecting that these troubles will recur so long as Jupiter persists in revolving in an elliptical orbit. But there is some immediate comfort in the fact that we have now passed through the coldest years of the cycle and the sun-spot wave has fairly begun to rise. The stars in their courses have given over fighting against us for a few years at least. Jupiter will help to insure a Republican victory this fall; our world is swinging into more prosperous years; everybody except Professor Grimmer will be richer and happier; and even Semi-Solomon will probably be warmed up by the thickening spots into taking a more cheerful view of the condition and prospects of his fellow-creatures.

The Englishmen Beaten.

[Boston Special to Chicago Tribune.]

It is not unlikely "The Pirates of Penzance" will soon figure in the law courts, the contesting parties being Gilbert and Sullivan, authors, and John Stetson, proprietor of the Globe Theater. In the latter part of January Stetson made a contract with D'Oyley Carte, by the terms of which the opera was booked for the Globe Theater for two weeks, beginning March 15, the owners to receive 70 per cent of the receipts. Immediately after the contract was signed Stetson heard whisperings that the proprietors of another theater were negotiating to buy the piece for Boston and New England. He at once started for New York, where he found that the parties referred to had offered $5,000 for the piece. Although Stetson had a contract that could not be wiped out, yet he had no one to look to for indemnification but Gilbert and Sullivan's manager, who had no property to attach in case of a suit at law, and who, being an alien, could leave the country, taking the money with him, and leave Stetson to whistle for his damages. Therefore an offer of $7,000 was made; the opposing managers bid $10,000, Stetson $12,000, and so on bid against bid, until the other party offered the sum of $20,000. Last week he went to New York again with a blank check and offered $25,000 for the piece, but Carte would not sell, and Stetson, to protect himself, notified him that he was going to take out a copyright, and had the title of the piece set up and entered according to law. He has three months in which to write the piece; so there is no possibility of any other parties putting the opera upon the boards in New England before Stetson's copyright shall have been filed. Mr. Spofford, Librarian of Congress, states that no effort whatever has been made on behalf of Gilbert and Sullivan to copyright their work here, although they might easily have done so if they had desired. The Librarian has no right to refuse a copyright to any person who seeks to copyright a new work, and Mr. Stetson's papers were duly issued.

Kossuth's History.

[From the London Truth.]

The historical work which the eminent Hungarian patriot, M. Kossuth, is about to publish will consist of a correspondence that will throw much light upon the connection of Napoleon III., Prince Napoleon, Count Cavour, Prince Couza, Prince Napoleon Ricasoli and other European statesmen with the Hungarian movement in 1859 and 1866. Many moves on the European chess-board which are as yet secret will be made public. In 1859 there was a specific treaty drawn up between Kossuth, Napoleon III. and Cavour by which it was agreed that, in certain eventualities, the corps d'armee of Prince Napoleon that entered Tuscany should cross the Adriatic and march on Hungary, while independence was to be proclaimed. In 1866 there were negotiations between Kossuth and Ricasoli for the same object. The work will be published in successive volumes, and the first will appear in about two months. It will be in Hungarian, but a German translation is already arranged, and no doubt both French and English translations will follow. M. Kossuth resides at his villa in Cologne, a village near Turin, where he has lived for nearly ten years. He is now 78 years old, but does not look more than 60. His time is devoted to astronomy, botany and replying to the numerous letters which he receives from townships and corporations in Hungary, in which he is urged to return to his country. He is, however, determined not to go back until Hungary is severed from all connection with Austria, although he does not object to the same sovereign reigning over both countries.

A North Carolina Rat Fight.

[Pedee (N. C.) Special to Wash. Post.]

A remarkable and perhaps unprecedented combat took place at Bostick's mill near this place this morning. It seems that Gen. Bostick and one of his employes, Anderson Wayless, went into a cornhouse which had been stored with corn for nearly twelve months, and which has been closed for that length of time. After getting in they found that the place was literally alive with rats, which began to attack fiercely the two men, who in vain attempted to beat them off. The rats came upon them in droves, biting them about the hands, face and legs, several actually getting under Wayless' shirt. Both men cried for help and were rescued from their perilous situation. The whole of General Bostick's left ear was eaten off and his face horribly bitten. Wayless' nose and lips were so badly bitten that his best friends could not recognize him, and his left eye was torn from its socket.

POET AND DAMSEL.

Wen the enterprising poet isn't writing,
Isn't writing,
Some melancholy verses about love,
About love,
It is safe to bet that he will be inditing,
Be inditing,
A sonnet on the whiteness of the dove,
Of the dove.

When the young and tender school girl isn't thinking,
Isn't thinking,
Of the time when she will be allowed to vote,
'Lowed to vote.
The chances are that she is coyly blinking,
Coyly blinking,
At some young man in a zebra overcoat,
Overcoat.

SARDOU, THE DRAMATIST.

His Condemned Play—Something of His Methods.

[Paris Cor. N. Y. Tribune.]

If it were not for the attempt to assassinate the Czar, the whole town would be still in a commotion about Sardou's "damned" piece, which is to be withdrawn next Tuesday from the Francais. Its failure will greatly reduce the dividends of that theater, on the boards of which it was rehearsed sixty-seven times. There is no more fidgety, exacting or tyrannical dramatic author than Sardou. He worries actors and actresses, scene shifters, carpenters, decorators and costumers. A near-sighted man, he looks close into all the accessories, and is not satisfied with their distant effect as it appears to him through his lorgnette. When his arguments fail to persuade a manager that scenic details should support microscopic examination, he ends by saying, "Whenever the Prince of Wales comes to Paris he invariably goes to witness the performance of any of my dramas that are before the public, and between the acts he descends into the coulisses to chat with me and with the players. Would I not be mortified to death were his eye to fall there upon such trashy accessories as you try to palm off upon me?" This shuts up the manager, who finishes by giving in.

Sardou is a very clever man but a poor dramatist. His cleverness is in a certain brilliancy of style and in the ingenuity of his plots, which have ever produced in me the effect of a rebus. This ingenuity, which is accompanied by address in gauging the public appetite and tastes and in plagiarizing from other dramatists, enchanted the idle women of the Empress Eugenie's Court. They took pinchbeck and dross for true gold and real diamonds. In my opinion Sardou is not the equal of Scribe in aught but style; and he is very inferior to—I shall not say Theodore Barriere, who in the intellectual order was a distant relation of Swift—but of Henri Monnier, the creator of M. Prudhomme. Shakspeare, when he found an old tragedy or comedy and adapted it, sublimated the personages he found therein by the power of his genius and the brightness of his wit. Sardou diminished Balzac's Cesar Birolteau to make him fit into the coat of Pillerat in "Maison Neuve." He reduced "Les Paysans" to the proportions of "Nos bons Villageois." Floupin is a diminution of Homais in Flaubert's novel, one of the Demoiselles Benoiton, of the Gencourts Renee Mauperin, and "L'Oncle Sam" is pirated wholesale from Alfred Assolant.

Sardou has another gift of a secondary order. He intuitively knows how to pack a house. Sardou always scatters the critics among friends of whom he is sure their applause when the others are cold will warm them up. He was not able to depose in the Francais of nearly so many places as he would have had a right to give away on the first night in another theater. The key note was not, therefore, struck by a picked audience, and "Daniel Rochat" was proclaimed absurd, wearisome, devoid of literary merit and a homily in five acts, and several charming costumes. This verdict I know is in contradiction with the notices of the play given in some of the London dailies. I think it well to explain the reason of the divergence of opinion. English newspaper managers, to make believe in the great enterprise of their representatives abroad, instruct them to send criticisms of new dramas, which are to appear in London a few hours after the plays are acted in Paris. Apparently they are telegraphed by special wire. In reality they are sent by post and beforehand. But, to obtain admission to the full-dress rehearsal, some critics abandon all independence. Every goose is transmuted into a swan. A wearisome tirade is made to pass for philosophical profundity. Sentimentalism takes the name of poetry, and applause and enthusiasm are furnished gratis by the correspondent. In discharging this part of expressed or tacit contract with the author of "Daniel Rochat," the Daily Telegraph on the morning of last Wednesday surpassed itself. The piece was damned as play never was before in the Francais. The organ of Lord Beaconsfield recorded enthusiastic, impassioned admiration, and spoke of the actors and actresses as having in some degree contributed to the success of the drama of M. Sardou.

Sardou is not content with making heaps of money and a reputation for cleverness and skill in arranging plays. He aspires to pass for a moralist and what the French term a remueur d'idees. He must preach, he must lecture, he must win honor and glory as a social reformer. In "Daniel Rochat" he flung a stone at M. Naquet, and supported as much as he dared the Papal thesis set forth in the last Encyclical, i. e. that a civil marriage is to be held of no account, the religious ceremony being the only binding one.

On the first night on which "Daniel Rochat" was performed it was hissed. On the second and third nights it was listened to by a yawning audience. M. Sardou boasted to a reporter of the Gaulois that he reduced his plot before he developed it into a drama to an algebraic equation. Certainly, this homily, in five acts, at which he has labored for ten months, is dry and unpoetic as any work of the late Prof. de Morgan.

An American-Born Elephant.

[From the Cincinnati Times.]

It is a known and curious fact that elephants lose the natural instincts in captivity and will not mate. Hence, in February, 1879, when Cooper & Bailey's large female elephant "Mamma" gave signs of being in an interesting condition, the medical faculty of Philadelphia, where she wintered, became much exercised over the matter, and the papers of the City of Brotherly Love teemed with speculations and theories. One great point of interest was the period of gestation, generally conceded to be about twenty and one-half months. "Mamma" has of late been evidently approaching her time, and the visits of the noted Dr. Pancost and others of the Philadelphia faculty have been unceasing, they making daily and nightly calls at the corner of Ridge avenue and Twenty-seventh street, where the show is in winter quarters again. This morning Mr. Sam Josephs, of this city, of the concern, received a telegram from Mr. J. A. Bailey, with the information that a baby elephant, the second ever born in captivity, had been safely delivered at 3 o'clock this morning. In the silence as to details Mr. Joseph assumes a prosperous state of affairs, and has wired his congratulations at length. Elephants in their native climes are generally about three feet high when born, suckle with their mouth, the trunk being thrown back, and are believed to be nourished indiscriminately by the females of a herd. They grow rapidly, being four feet high in their second year. The only authentic account of a previous birth was one which occurred in France—fully described by M. J. P. L. L. Houel, in an elaborate treatise on the elephant, published in 1803, in which is recorded and illustrated the curious fact that the male assists at every period from the accouchement to the weaning.

The Religious Marriage of Napoleon and Josephine.

[From Mme. de Remusat's Memoirs.]

Two days before the coronation M. de Remusat, who, in addition to being grand chamberlain, was also keeper of the wardrobe, and therefore charged with all the details of the imperial costumes, submitted to the Empress the superb diadem which had just been made for her. He found her in a state of delight and satisfaction, which she could hardly conceal from general notice. Presently she took my husband apart, and confided to him that on the morning of that same day an altar had been erected in the Emperor's cabinet and that Cardinal Fesch had performed the marriage ceremony between herself and Bonaparte, in the presence of his two aides-de-camp. After the ceremony she had procured a written certificate of the marriage from the Cardinal. She carefully preserved this document, and notwithstanding all the Emperor's efforts to obtain it from her she never could be induced to part with it. It has since been said that any religious marriage not witnessed by the cure of the parish in which it is celebrated is de facto null and void, and that a means of breaking the marriage was purposely reserved by this expedient. In that case Cardinal Fesch must have been a consenting party to the fraud, and yet his subsequent conduct forbids any such supposition. When violent quarrels arose on the subject of the divorce, and the Empress went so far as to threaten her husband with the publication of the certificate in her possession, Cardinal Fesch was consulted upon this point. He repeatedly affirmed that the document was in good form and that his conscience obliged him to declare the marriage so validly solemnized that it could not be broken otherwise than by an act of arbitrary authority. After the divorce the Emperor wanted to get possession of the document in question, but the Cardinal advised the Empress not to part with it. It is a remarkable proof of the extent to which suspicion and distrust prevailed among all the members of the Bonaparte family that the Empress, while availing herself of advice that coincided with her own feelings, told me she sometimes thought the Cardinal gave that advice in connivance with the Emperor, who wanted to drive her to some outbreak which would give him an excuse for banishing her from France. And yet the uncle and nephew had quarreled, at that very time, about the Pope's affairs.

KANSAS LETTER.

Enterprising Oswego and Some of the Live Citizens Who Make the Town.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

OSWEGO, KAN., March 9, 1880.—Few towns in Kansas enjoy the reputation of Oswego. All over the West it is known as the most prosperous of any of the Kansas towns. The growth of the place in the past six months has been wonderful. From a town of 1,500 her population has been swelled to 2,500, with fair prospects of her doubling the latter number within another year. The advantages the place possesses are rare for a town of her size. Being blessed with all the advantages nature could lavish upon her, she is also favored with being the county seat of Labette county, the best county in the State of Kansas, and being situated on the lines of the St. L. and San F. and the M., K. and T. Railroads. The Kansas City, Fort Scott and Gulf Railroad runs within eight miles of the place.

The railroad facilities of Oswego are bound to make her a jobbing point for Southern Kansas, having competing lines to St. Louis, and the advantage of a Kansas City or Chicago market. The agricultural resources of the country surrounding the place are great, the soil being very productive.

The town is built upon a prairie country, and a more beautiful sight could not have been easily selected. The place has been laid out with great taste, the streets running with the cardinal points. There are two main business streets, one running north and south from the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad depot. The other traverses east and west from the M., K. and T. railroad depot. The buildings have been erected after the most modern style and display an amount of taste in their finish. The business houses are mostly two stories high, and with few exceptions are built of brick. The frame-houses that were burned in the fire the other night will be replaced with brick buildings, as the city prohibits any but brick structures being erected on the main business streets.

The business men of Oswego are a model for enterprises. They work harmoniously together, with the one purpose — improving their town. Some thirty houses are in course of erection, and as many more will go up in the next two months. Among the most important of them is the Court-house. It is a large two-story brick building. The architecture is very tasty. It is to have many conveniences the general run of such buildings in country towns are lacking in. The building is to be finished in about a month.

The leading business men of the place do business on an enlarged scale, and are enterprising, intelligent business men, and, with few exceptions, are good Democrats. The latter statement is sufficient reason for them to be warm friends of the POST-DISPATCH.

The Labette County Democrat is the organ of the Democracy of Labette county. Although established but four months, it has already proved a paying enterprise. It has a large subscription list and a liberal advertising patronage. The Democrat is under the editorial charge of Col. King, an old newspaper man, late of Quincy, Ill. Col. King is an able writer and a strong Democrat, and will undoubtedly do much towards changing the political complexion of his section.

Among the leading merchants in Oswego are Martin & McAlister. This firm was unfortunately among the victims of the late fire. They were fully insured and will shortly resume business. The senior member of the firm, John C. Martin, is an old St. Louisan, and has been a reader of the POST-DISPATCH since the first issue.

Maj. W. T. Cunningham is the recognized leader of the Democracy of this county, and likes the POST-DISPATCH because it exactly speaks his sentiments. The Major is a dealer in agricultural implements and is doing a large business.

John Carpenter is the title of the leading dry goods house in town. He carries a large stock and does a good business. Mr. Carpenter is lately from Tennessee, and believes in the politics of his State.

C. C. Clover is engaged in the grocery business. His stock is complete in every particular, and he enjoys a good trade.

One of the largest dry goods establishments in Oswego is that of Louis Schneider. He carries a select stock which he disposes of at the lowest prices. Every one knows when they deal with Mr. Schneider that they get precisely what is represented; so he gets a liberal patronage.

L. Sawyer & Co. are dealers in dry goods, hats, caps, boots and shoes. Their stock is about the largest in the place. Their trade is very extensive. Both the members of the firm are young men who thoroughly understand their business. This firm have the utmost confidence of all their customers.

Hobert & Condon have a large banking establishment. Their business is so large that it is often wondered that they don't have opposition. Both gentlemen composing the firm are largely interested both in this town and county. They are always on the lookout for an opportunity to promote the interest of the place.

The Oswego House is one of the best hotels in the West. It has a good patronage. No one ever stops at this house that will soon forget it. The proprietor is Mr. L. Knight.

The St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad Company is represented here by J. W. Rockwell. The large business the company does at this point is altogether owing to the popularity of Capt. Rockwell.

W. R. Graves is the proprietor of the Commercial House. The house does a good business, as it well deserves.

Capt. Jno. L. Caldwell is the leading saloon keeper in this place. Your correspondent has been informed on good authority that the Captin. keeps nothing but the finest wines and liquors. W.

THE hottest water yet encountered on the Comstock is in the Belcher on the 3,000-foot level, where the diamond drill was sent east to guard against an influx. It is with difficulty that its exact temperature can be taken, as the hole is horizontal. By holding the bulb of the thermometer under the drippings from the hole the mercury rises to 162. Could the exact temperature of the water be obtained by fastening a bulb in the hole it would doubtless add a few degrees to the above. On the mountain water boils at 198.

AMUSEMENTS.

Olympic Theater.

The Colville Opera Burlesque Company produced last evening the bright burlesque of "Robinson Crusoe." It proved a success every way and the performance was undoubtedly the best yet given by the Colville Company. The music is lively and catching, while the costumes are rich, handsome and artistic and display the shapely forms of the fair ones to perfection. The applause was vociferous, and the finale of the first act fairly brought down the house. Four times the curtain had to be raised, and it seemed as if the audience never would be satisfied. Certainly the stage presented then a pretty, fascinating view. The entire strength of the company was represented and the graceful terpsichorean motions and melodious strains made up an ensemble that was delightful. Kate Everleigh as Crusoe acted with chic and vim, and in her island costume was irresistibly captivating. Eme Roseau, as Polly Hopkins, was, as usual, conspicuous by her vocalization. Ella Chapman acted sprightly and vivaciously. Roland Reed was more than ordinarily funny as Jim Cox, while A. W. Maflin, as the Pirate, was certainly seen to the best advantage. His make-up and business were excellent, and his Will Atkins is one of the best things he has done here. Graham, as Friday, was good. Ada Lee posed artistically as usual. The two scenes in the last act, "On the Track," were excellent. "Robinson Crusoe" proved such a success that it will be reproduced on Saturday evening. To-night and to-morrow matinee, "Babes in the Wood."

Pope's Theater.

"A Triple Courtship," a three-act comedy by Wm. D. Eaton, based upon the German of Julius Rosen, was produced by the Criterion Comedy Company last evening. The cast was as follows: Abraham Withers, Clara's guardian, in town on a visit, and a little bothered about his 'rithmetic, Mr. F. F. Mackay; George Sharpe, a journalist hunting a sensation, Mr. W. De Wolf Hopper; Senator Smith, on a matrimonial campaign, Mr. T. F. Egbert; William Lamb Reynard, the widow's son, a little wanting in vertebræ, Mr. W. A. Whitecar; John Post, a servant, a little off on his ear, Mr. John Ogden; Clara Waite, the Senator's niece, a wealthy heiress, Miss Louise Sylvester; Mrs. Reynard, relict of the late Judge Reynard, Miss Mary Davenport; Emma Withers, Abraham's daughter, Miss Emma Fellman; Mary Ann, servant maid, and in love with Wm. Lamb, Miss Helen Gardner.

There is considerable humor in "A Triple Courtship" and the performance ran very evenly. All the parts were well sustained. There is little plot, but quite sufficient to form a peg on which to hang all the farcial incidents. "A Triple Courtship" will be repeated to-night and to-morrow matinee. To-morrow evening for Mr. Ed. Zimmerman's benefit, "Caste." This performance will be an exceptionally fine one, as it will afford more scope for the talents of the Criterion Company than anything they have yet presented.

Grand Opera-House.

Minnie Palmer's "Boarding School" still continues to draw good houses. The success of the piece is mainly contributed by Minnie Palmer herself and Wm. Scanlan, although the remainder of the company are satisfactory in their parts. Minnie is a copyist of Lotta in every respect, and her efforts are all produced by a close imitation of the "dramatic cocktail."

Theatre Comique.

"Jack Shepard" was presented to a fair house at the Theatre Comique last night. The Hungarian ballet under the direction of Mons. Baptista and the variety programme that precedes "Jack Shepard" are good attractions.

A ROBBERY.

A Country Merchant Relieved of $475 in Money.

An old gentleman from the country by the name of Chas. Schmidt had $475 taken from him yesterday afternoon while doing the town on Almond street. He came from his native place during the day and had about $500 with him. During the afternoon he was walking along Almond street, when he was invited to enter one of the houses of that thoroughfare. He did so and was enjoying himself as much as was possible under the circumstances. Having occasion to use some money, he discovered that he had been robbed of his money, amounting to $475. This was about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. He did not acquaint the police with his loss until some time after the robbery, when the officers visited the place and found that the woman suspected of committing the theft had left the place. This morning she was arrested and is now in the hold-over awaiting identification by Mr. Schmidt.

East St. Louis.

A railing has been put up in the Council Chamber, dividing the room about equally.

After numerous attempts the police have succeeded in fastening a charge of grand larceny against Thos. Enright.

The grand jury has returned several indictments that have not yet been published, as the indicted parties are still at large.

Kennedy, the coal-dealer, will shortly erect a sixteen-room brick dwelling on the north side of Missouri avenue, just east of the East Carondelet Railrod depot.

James Connolly and Thos. Kelly were arraigned before 'Squire Graney this morning for trespassing on passenger trains crossing the bridge and fined $1 and costs each. F. W. Messmer, up for a plain drunk, was fined $3 and costs.

A burglar attempted to effect an entrance into Christ. Wessman's dwelling, on Collinsville avenue, last night, but Officer Zimmerman, who was in the vicinity, frightened him off. While escaping the man turned and fired one shot at Officer Zimmerman, who returned it. Neither took effect. The man, followed by the officer, ran towards Heim's brewery, when another shot was fired at him, but he succeeded in escaping capture by running.

The Public School Library Squabble.

The German members of the School Board make a mistake in dragging the question of nationality into the matter of the officers of the Public School Library. Mr. Crunden, according to all accounts, has been an efficient officer, and under his management the Public School Library has been most successfully conducted, and gained in popularity with all classes. To remove him in order to make room for a German would be a great mistake, and could only injure the Germans among their best friends. We notice that both the Westliche Post and Anzeiger take this view of the matter, and deplore the conduct of certain German members in the School Board, which can only result in reacting upon the Germans themselves.

An Assault Case.

A. Bacon, a resident of Cheltenham, was badly bruised up in a row which took place yesterday at that suburb, for which he took out a warrant this morning against Thomas Williams. He charges Williams with assaulting him with a rock, beating him about the head and face. Bacon still shows the result of his encounter, as his eye is badly injured and he also has cuts in the region of the left temple. The warrant was taken out and will be served during the day.

A Trunk Taken.

Chas. B. Smythe, the attorney whose office is at 12 South Fifth street, had a trunk taken from his private office yesterday afternoon. The trunk was of fine material and contained an amount of summer clothing and jewelry besides a number of letters from various parties in and outside of the city. The theft was performed while the attorney was in an adjoining room, as the loss was not discovered until some time after the perpetration. The thieves gained entrance to the room by means of a pass key. No clue has been obtained that will lead to the detection of the guilty parties.

First District Police Court.

At the morning session of the First District Police Court the cases against Chas. Wendemuth for keeping an employment office without a license, Lizzie Moore, Jas. Trainer, for disturbing the peace were dismissed. Joseph Penn, W. M. English and Louis Hoffman were up for keeping a dramshop without license and had their cases dismissed. W. H. Simkins, for excavating without a permit, was fined $20. Peter Martin, for disturbing the peace, was discharged. The cases against Jerry Hurley and Larry Finn, for carrying property from wharf, and against Frank Leibman, for loitering, were continued until the 13th of the present month.

CHEAP rent and small expenses will admit of small profit. A. McElrath means business.

Schneider's Spree.

John Schneider is a German who resides at South Main street and was up in the First District Police Court this morning charged with disturbing the peace by abusing his wife and threatening to kill that female by carving her with a case-knife. She objected to his manifestation of regard and had him arrested. This morning she detailed her sorrows and stated that her husband frequently made life miserable for her by his hot temper. The prisoner denied that he was other than a loving husband, and stated that he was drunk yesterday when arrested. The Court fined him $5 and costs.

A BONANZA for druggists—St. Jacobs Oil.

Clothes from the Line.

Mrs. Diswold, who resides at No. 829 Rosatti street, had some clothes taken from the line where they were hanging to dry yesterday. The articles were returned, but in a condition that led the Diswolds to suppose that the clothes had been used in cleaning out a chimney. The family consider that the indignity was perpetratad in spite by a female named Annie Modosheck, and to secure her arrest and punishment the Diswolds took out a warrant this morning.

'TWILL pay you to examine McElrath's stock of Socks, Underwear, Neckwear, Handkerchiefs, etc., before buying your spring outfit.

Legion of Honor.

GREAT heavens! What long articles the editor of the Davenport Gazette has about the Panama Canal, but as to the Mississippi River, he might as well be a resident of Timbuctoo.

THE editor of the Dubuque Times tells us all about the "Panama Canal," but hasn't a word to say about the Mississippi. He also discourses learnedly about the dissolution of the English Parliament.

To Rollingpin and deputies: The Times this morning intimates in doggerel the possibility of my being kicked. The sum of $25 has been put up at 616 Olive street that neither the Commodore nor one of his deputies will do that thing. A. L. RYLAND.

THE gorge broke at Yankton on Saturday afternoon, and the Far West was left aground by the sudden subsidence of the water. On Sunday the river began to rise again and it was thought the boat would be floated off yesterday.

MEMPHIS AVALANCHE, 11: At last accounts Capt. Blake was resting easy and entirely free from pain. The J. B. M. Kehlor passed down for New Orleans yesterday, loaded to the guards. One item of her cargo was 8,000 sks of corn, which she added below Cairo.

DIAMOND JOE'S new boat will be here about April 15—a sternwheeler of pretty mould and elegantly fitted up as a passenger boat. She was built at Dubuque—the engines by House & Dean. She is 220 feet long, 32 feet beam, 5½ feet deep; engines 17½ inches, 5½ feet stroke.

CINCINNATI COMMERCIAL: Capt. John C. Reno has received an appointment as clerk of the city water-works at a salary of $1,500 per year. The steamer Clifton, leaving for St. Louis to morrow, will give through receipts for all points on the Upper Mississippi and Missouri Rivers.

IT is rumored that Com. Kountz has sold the sternwheeler John D. Scully to Scoville, of the defunct Charmer. She is running between New Orleans and Shreveport, and will be refitted and improved by Scoville when the cotton shipping season is over. The Scully is one of the best money making boats of her size afloat.

PITTSBURG, 10: Business continues to hold out pretty well, but as the J. L. Rhoads has commenced to load for St. Louis in opposition to the Wyoming a reduction in rates is not improbable. The C. W. Batchelor, from Wheeling, and the Emma Graham, from Cincinnati, arrived and departed. The Dacotah, from St. Louis, is due to-night.

MADISON Star: A Star reporter was told by a gentleman high in authority that the Madison ship yard had now everything fixed its own way, and can get at any time all the work it wants. He said he could get three more boats to build at once if they could handle them, and that there will be steady work for the next three months at least. Many of our mechanics who had removed to Jeffersonville are returning.

HERE'S an old experienced sea captain to be tested for "color blindness." The man has spent his whole life on the water, is thoroughly versed in his profession, has given abundant proof of his courage and executive ability in time of emergency, and has the complete confidence of the owners of the line. Such a man can not be made to order at an hour's notice. Yet his license may fail to be renewed on the representation of some duly authorized young medical man that he is a littly shaky in distinguishing blue from green when the dry worsteds are held before him. Isn't this carrying a new idea to a dangerous extreme? It may be far easier to find men perfect in the proper perception of color than in that combination of valuable qualities and experience necessary in a good sailor.—[New York Graphic.

Confidence in the Spirits.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]

P. W. Wright, whose shingle proclaiming him to be a magnetic and electric physician graces the window sill of a house on Twelfth street, above Wood, was arrested somewhere about cock-crow yesterday morning by Officer Trefts on the charge of obtaining goods by false pretenses. At the hearing before Magistrate Smith yesterday afternoon, which was attended by a number of reputed Spiritualists, of which coterie Wright and his wife are said to be devotees, R. K. Pearce, of the firm of R. K. Pearce & Co., mathematical, electrical and nautical instrument makers, 54 South Fourth street, testified that the false representations by which Wright obtained electric batteries worth $58 from the firm were that he owned the Twelfth street house clear of all incumbrances. This allegation afterwards appeared untrue. Wright had no title to the place. When Officer Trefts visited the house he found that a furniture dealer had removed the fixtures on a writ of replevin and the alleged physician and his wife were sitting in sumptuous ease upon a trunk. The Magistrate committed Wright, under $600 bail, for a further hearing. As he departed Mrs. Wright was heard to whisper the consolatory remark: "Never mind, deary, the spirits will have you out."

THE rotten old tow-line snapped when an effort was made to divert the Henderson meeting to the shabby cause of Grant.

WALL street is said to be trembling on the verge of another panic. The buoyancy of the past month is too beautiful to last.

WE are sorry that the Fitz John Porter case has been laid aside. There is nothing to take the place of it and the country will feel lonely without Fitz.

DR. PRETORIUS patriotically formulated the opposition to Grant last night when he declared that he opposed Cæsar Grant, not that he loved him less, but that he loved the Republic more. A good platform when the country is in danger.

THE political campaign has opened in England, and leaders are breaking out all over the country with speeches and manifestoes. We may remark, in passing, that the party convention as practiced over here is an unknown luxury on the other side of the water.

THE country is not suffering particularly, but it would be well for the Democrats of the House to keep right on hammering the appropriation bills and let politics alone. A President can be manufactured later in the Spring, after public business has been very generally attended to.

THE Republican party of Missouri is not much larger than a bar of soap after a hard day's washing, and now it has gone and split itself right in the middle. If this schism is not healed the Democrats will be compelled to "choose-up" and divide off in order to have something to fight this fall.

IT is not difficult to understand why the Republican State Central Committee of Missouri attempted yesterday to hold its deliberations in secret. The concern hasn't very much self-respect, but it has good sense enough to make a show of concealing its quarrelings and ruffianly wrangles from the public eye.

UNTIL Mr. Shields is heard from it will be impossible to tell whether the Republican State Convention will be held at Sedalia on the 14th of April or at some other place on some other day. We rather incline to the opinion that the Republican party of Missouri is walking around at present under the hat of Mr. Shields.

HAVING incurred the displeasure of the Woman Suffragists we shall expect the speedy annihilation of the Bar Association. Mrs. Virginia Minor is up and in arms over the ungallant reception of the memorial recently sent to the association, and the legal lights who compose that body might as well prepare themselves for a terrible extinguishment.

MR. HENDERSON'S meeting last night was simply a splendid ovation. It was such an audience as would have done honor to any public man in the country. The hall was packed to its capacity and hundreds were turned away from the door. Mr. Henderson was exceedingly fortunate in having the hostility of the Globe-Democrat. To the efforts of that concern to belittle his views and break up his meeting Mr. Henderson is probably indebted for the magnificent assemblage which greeted him last night—though it must be said that the persistent advertising of the POST-DISPATCH had much to do with bringing out the crowd.

MR. BILL SPRINGER, of Illinois, is nearly always in the act of returning from New York. In view of the fact that Congress holds its sessions in Washington and not in New York, we are at a loss to understand how it is that Mr. Springer manages to spend so much of his time playing shuttlecock between the capital and the metropolis. He does it, however, and every time he "returns from New York" he has something to say about Tilden and his candidacy. He has returned again. He didn't see Mr. Tilden this time; but he saw Mr. Hewitt, and he has positive information that Mr. Tilden will either be a candidate himself or name the Democratic nominee for President. We had this news by the ordinary channels six months ago; but when Springer brings it fresh from New York it has a sort of ex cathedra sound, you know.

IT is a common boast of the Grant organ in this city that it is an impartial gatherer of news. It is on this account that many persons have been induced to overlook its partisan malignancy and its daily libels upon the people of Missouri. As a rule, the readers of daily newspapers can overlook partisan meanness if they can feel certain that they are getting the news. This morning the Grant organ demonstrates its "impartiality" as a newspaper by printing a garbled and meagre outline of ex-Sentor Henderson's speech at Mercantile Library Hall and surrendered nearly a page to the snapping and quarreling of an insignificant Republican committee. The able editor of the Grant organ will doubtless declare that very few people care to know the views of Mr. Henderson, while millions stand gaping to know whether the one-horse Republican Committee in a State where there are hardly enough Republicans to provide representation on election boards is in favor of Grant or against him. The public, however, knows news when it sees it.

THE FALSE ALARM.

We cannot agree with Mr. Henderson.

The danger to the Republic is not in one man. No American yet born will witness a repetition of Napoleon's coup d'etat in this country. No American yet born will proclaim himself dictator or emperor in the fashion of Cæsar and Napoleon I. These historical parallels in Mr. Henderson's speech were drawn with great power, but they cannot apply to the American Republic—cannot apply to Grant.

We believe that the American Republic is in great danger, but we do not believe that Grant alone represents that danger. We believe that John B. Henderson is able, fearless and patriotic. But he is on an entirely wrong track when he prophesies the downfall of the American Republic if, instead of John Sherman or Blaine, Grant should be elected to a third term. We are convinced that the opposition to Grant has so far hurt itself much more than the ex-President by predicting that if again returned to the White House he would declare himself an emperor or imitate Cæsar and Napoleon.

This is a false issue.

The real danger lies in a precisely opposite direction. Instead of changing the form and name of the Republic, abolishing elections and establishing a perpetual Executive, the great danger is that under the very name and form of the Republic, through the very instrumentality of sham elections, the spirit and substance of the Republic will be killed.

The enemies of the American Republic dare not change its outward form, dare not establish an empire in name or an emperor in fact. But they not only desire but dare to grasp and concentrate imperial powers in the hands of a few, establish a perfect oligarchy and personal despotism under the very forms of popular self-government.

New York is still a republican State. Yet Roscoe Conkling is already as despotic a master as if he were Grand Duke or King.

Pennsylvania still has a government republican in form. Yet Don Cameron inherited and wields the personal rule of the State from his father precisely as though he had been born on a throne.

Maine still has a popular form of government. Still Blaine is as absolute a dictator of that State as Cameron is in Pennsylvania.

Rhode Island still undergoes the regular form of elections. Yet everybody knows that voters are either bought or disfranchised, and the State is the personal property of a few.

Colorado, Kansas, Nevada, in the West, are still equal and sovereign States. Yet everybody knows how, under the very forms of popular government, seats in the Senate are regularly filled by open purchase and rank venality.

The Supreme Court of the United States is still the highest tribunal in the land. Yet everybody knows that when the gravest political question of the century was submitted to it a majority of its members did not shrink from perjury to save its "party."

R. B. Hayes is still called President of the United States. Yet everybody knows that he was never elected by the people.

John Sherman is still the candidate of Mr. Henderson and the so-called reformers for the Presidency. Yet it is this same John Sherman who, more than any other human being, personally inspired, instigated and carried through all the infamous frauds, forgeries and perjuries connected with the "counting in" of the first fraudulent President.

Congress is still called the American Congress. The lower house is still called the House of Representatives. Yet everybody who is not absolutely blind must see that the American Congress is no longer what it used to be—is no longer what it should be—the first and most important branch of the Government; but is degenerated and largely controlled by Executive power and patronage, which have unprecedentedly and dangerously increased.

The real danger lies not in one man, but in the tendency of the day toward centralization, the spirit of the age toward sham and fraud, the base and desperate character of Mr. Henderson's party, the tremendous temptation furnished by the gigantic power and patronage of the Presidency—the growing indifference of a busy people on the one side, the growing sectional divisions and prejudices on the other—between them the growing corruption and power of vast material interests, the great audacity of able and selfish demagogues.

Suppose Blaine or Sherman should be nominated and elected. Would not either of them be more dangerous than Grant?

Suppose Grant were elected. Would it not lead to an almost certain and overwhelming reaction at the very next election?

There is no danger of an American emperor. But there is danger of a false, sham Republic.

A FEW days ago the manager of a strolling Liliputian Opera Company advertised himself at Rochester, New York, by marrying the tenor of his organization, a dwarf named Reuben Allen Steere, to Miss Becky Ann Myers, a young lady twenty-seven years of age and only thirty-one inches in length. Colonel Steere, we may remark, is thirty-five inches high, about as robust as a rolling-pin, and is the owner of a real goatee. There is no law in this country to prohibit the mating of idiots, cripples and dwarfs, but these Tom Thumb marriages are decidedly distasteful to all persons outside of the show business. To take a pair of these unfortunate creatures, dress them up and marry them off is simply a burlesque on one of the most solemn and sacred social rites. Last year New York city was regaled and shocked by the performance of a marriage between two wretched midgets, also in the exhibition line, who had scarcely sense enough to sit in a chair. There are enough small and cramped intellects in the country without this systematic effort to create more of them. There will be idiots enough in the natural process of things, and inasmuch as these marriages are merely designed to breed an especial type of parody on the human race for the behoof and benefit of showmen, who are never so happy as when exchanging glimpses of monstrosities for pennies, they should be frowned upon by the public and denounced by the press.

TOO much credit and honor cannot be awarded to Mrs. Minor and her noble little band of male and female reformers which meets every week in the Library building to plead for suffrage for tender, helpless woman. No matter what the discouragement, Mrs. Minor and her followers come up smiling every week. And of discouragements there is no end. For instance, at the meeting last night a young man, decorated with blonde curly hair and a pair of Brazilian pebble eye-glasses, rose and made a painful confession to the devoted assemblage. He said that he loved the young ladies, and the young ladies loved him, but to save his soul he could not persuade them to attend the suffrage meetings with him. He had no difficulty in getting them to accompany him to ice-cream saloons in the summer time. They would even go ten squares out of the way, in the worst of winter weather, to take a glass of beer or a dish of oysters at his expense, but when he mentioned the Peril of the country and proposed an evening with the Suffrage Shriekers, the giddy young things tossed up their heads with disdain and uttered something to this effect: "Oh pshaw! What's the use? The thing will die out—there's nothing in it." It is barely possible that the young man with the curly blonde hair keeps company with an unintellectual class of young women who care more for their appetites than for their political rights, but every observant member of the human race will bear witness to the fact that until a lady reaches the uncertain years between thirty and fifty it is a difficult thing to convince her that there aren't a dozen things in the world of more importance to her than the ballot. Nine out of ten of them would rather have a new spring bonnet or a fall walking suit than to have the privilege of stuffing all the ballot boxes in the State.

A DISPATCH from Cleburne, Texas, says that Col. B. J. Chambers, the nominee for Vice-President on the Pomeroy Greenback-Labor ticket, was serenaded at his residence the other night. There was a band of music and a military company on parade, but the Colonel didn't make much of a speech. He only returned his heartfelt thanks. The telegram says that the Colonel is "a very positive man in his dealings, and not at all popular." It is to be hoped that he is fair and just in his dealings with the brass band and the soldiers. If he is rich he can have just as much fun running on a hopeless ticket, such as the Pomeroy crowd has placed in the field this year, as if he were attached to the biggest political caravan in the land.

IT is quite remarkable, but a fact, nevertheless, that no barber is willing to admit that he is a plain barber by trade. They are always coiffeurs or artists of some kind and their shops are always parlors or saloons. A St. Louis rasper is preparing to take the cake by hanging out a sign announcing himself as a "Tonsorial Artist, Physiognomical Hair Dresser, Facial Operator, Cranium Manipulator and Capillary Abridger." It is to be hoped, also, that he is a Conversationalist.

OUR prediction that in time every organ of the body would have a pad seems like to come true. Since we made it the lungs, kidneys and head have been supplied. Next! There are tools enough to go around.—[Cleveland Plaindealer.

If you will interview the ladies of the burlesque drama you will find that pads were used on the calves of legs long before they were known to possess medicinal virtues.

THE POST-DISPATCH acknowledges the receipt of the six days lie-as-you-please champion belt, which arrived this morning from Cairo. We have the belt now, but entertain only a faint hope of holding it in the face of the resurrected Ananiases who daily challenge the credulity of the living from the corner of Fourth and Pine streets.

BRET HARTE, says a Paris dispatch, will resign his Crefeldt Consulship and come home. He should imitate the big ministers and come home without resigning. He will not be missed at his consulate, for he does nothing when there. By drawing his pay and spending it in this country he will confer a blessing on all of us.

WE are sorry to hear that Senator Sharon has been compelled to absent himself from the Senate in order to retrieve his fortunes. The natural inference is that Mr. Sharon should step aside and give some man in Nevada a hack at the Senate who hasn't lost so much money.

THERE is no trouble about Sammy Tilden's health. He has lots of it, but his voice lacks the trumpet twang of the statesman, in the estimation of Mr. Halstead. That's the trouble. Mr. Tilden can't rise up and shake his finger and command order on the back seats.

PERSONAL.

—Mrs. Anne Thackeray Ritchie is in such indifferent health that she is unable to undertake at present any literary work.

—The daughters of Secretaries Evarts and Schurz do considerable sketching in the east room of the Corcoran Art Gallery.

—Lord Dufferin is studying the Russian language and can speak it reasonably well. He gives an hour each day to the work.

—Cetywayo is reported to be anxious to see England, and it is thought that he will be permitted to visit that country in the summer.

—The wife and daughter of Senator Edmunds will return to this country in May. Mrs. Edmunds' health has greatly improved during her European trip.

—Ex-Congressman George Sykes, of New Jersey, who died the other day, was known in Washington as "Friend Sykes, the Quaker member." He used "thee" and "thou" in conversation.

—"Barney" Bigler, six years ago a shoulder-hitter on Third avenue, in New York City, is one of Roscoe Conkling's delegates to Chicago. Barney is solid for as many "terrums" as the "old man" wants.

—Mr. James Russell Lowell is now just past his sixtieth year. He was born in Cambridge, Mass., and his home in that city always has been, and still is, the house in which he was born. It is a fine old mansion of the revolutionary period.

—Carl Rosa recovered from his illness just in time to close his season of English opera at Her Majesty's Theater. He conducted the performance of "Mignon" on Saturday night, and received, according to the cable dispatches, a tremendous ovation.

—Mr. Edward Scovel intends, Miss Brewster says, to study two years longer with Lamperti at Milan. He spends five hours a day in singing, two hours in the study of dramatic action, and one in practicing his Italian. His wife, Miss Brewster also says, takes great interest in his studies, and has willingly given up her handsome home and pleasant life in Paris to lead the quiet one her husband needs in Milan.

—Mr. Alvan Clark, the founder of the famous Cambridge Telescope Works, was seventy-six years old on Monday. He is a thoroughly stalwart man in spite of his many years, his gray hair being the only sign of old age about him. Mr. Clark traces his ancestry back to the Mayflower. He is now waiting for the arrival of material from Paris in order to proceed with the telescope which he is making for the Russian Government.

Deserves It All.

[From the Sedalia Bazoo.]

The spicy and newsy St. Louis POST-DISPATCH of yesterday contains a self-congratulatory editorial announcing the completion of its thirteenth lunar birthday. It says its circulation has doubled and its receipts have trebled within this the first year of its existence. The appearance of the paper leaves no reason for doubting this statement, and, with the general public, we will echo "We are glad of it." The POST-DISPATCH deserves it.

High Places for 'Em.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]

In the peerage under the coming Crown high places will be reserved for the Wisconsin Senator who renominated Grant at the tail end of an alleged non-partisan argument, and the ex-Senator from the same State who writes up the third term in the North American Review. They will have to draw lots to see whether Carpenter or Howe shall have the title of Duke of Wisconsin.

As to Osculation.

[From the Kansas City Times.]

Agnes Herndon's kiss isn't to be compared with Emma Abbott's kiss. It hasn't the genuine ring about it. It lacks the divine afflatus. Abbott's kiss reminds one of the gurgle of maple sap out of the nozzle of a five-gallon demijohn. Herndon's kiss sounds like the explosion of a paper peanut bag.

Grant's New Programme.

[From the Cincinnati Commercial.]

General Grant will not leave the City of Mexico until the 17th. Then he proposes to land at Galveston, and it is thought he may make his way by easy stages to Hot Springs, where Elihu B. Washburne and he will take a sulphur bath together and fix up the next Presidency.

A Man of Business.

[From the Washington Post.]

Mr. Eads talks very much like a man who understands his business. Those who doubted his ability to plan or carry out a project to connect the two great oceans must be obdurately perverse if the St. Louis bridge and the Mississippi jetties—two engineering triumphs which have never been excelled on the globe—fail to convince them.

Startling Rumor.

[From the Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Mr. Tilden was observed to sneak into Gramercy Park the other evening with the block puzzle under his coat. This settles it. Mr. Tilden is not in the Presidential race.

Just for Fun.

[From the Sedalia Democrat.]

Just for the fun of the thing won't some of Grant's friends just step forward and pledge him against a fourth term?

Patrons of Politeness.

[From the New York Sun.]

Lesseps says he really enjoyed reading Hayes' interoceanic canal essay. Oh! these blarneying Frenchmen!

PUBLIC OPINION.

"Boss" Filley Rises to Explain.

ST. LOUIS, March 12, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DEAR SIR—Do yourself and myself the justice to state that there is no foundation, in fact, for the reputed letter in your yesterday's issue, signed "C. I. F." I never wrote that, or any such letter, or have given any other advice than to let the Henderson meeting alone; that it was their meeting and should in no manner be disturbed. Very respectfully,

CHAUNCEY I. FILLEY.

Too Much Ventilation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

If there is one crying evil that needs redress at once, it is the shameful condition of the cars of the Union Railway Company's line. What with broken windows, doors that won't close, and other ingenious appliances for the discomfort of passengers, a ride of a mile on these cars is almost certain to culminate in some species of throat or lung disease. The keen wind whistles all about one, and no matter how warmly one may be dressed, two blocks inside one of these bobtail hearses sets one shivering, and keeps a person miserable for the rest of the day.

BRONCHITIS.

No More Marriages.

ST. LOUIS, March 11, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The communication from "Pater Familias" in your spicy issue of this evening, sounds the death knell of many marriages. What with the great expense of bringing up a family, the sorrow occasioned by disease and death, the chances of divorce, the perplexities of housekeeping, jealousy arising from former lovers of the wife, with occasional stray missives from them to her, is enough to appal any unmarried man, and make him cling the more strongly to single blessedness. Marriage is not a necessity; so let single men drive away from their minds the ideas of Voltaire on marriage and the nonsense that surrounds the hymeneal altar.

BACHELOR.

Straw Bonds in the Circuit Court.

ST. LOUIS, March 12, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

There is a great and growing evil in our Courts which should command the attention of the grand jury, and that is the matter of straw bonds for costs in Circuit Court cases. Lawyers with some reputation in their profession, Judges past and present, and gentlemen whose names are in everybody's mouth, come into court and are taken as bondsmen without anything like a sufficient examination. As a matter of fact there are instances of men being taken as security when in the same court room there were Sheriff's returns of nulla bona about the same person. It is almost time for this thing to stop. A witness can be taken away from his work and held in court day after day, be fined promptly if he does not show up to the minute, and then never get even the poor apology for pay which the law allows. The grand jury are doing very little, I hear. Suppose they bring their minds to bear upon this security matter.

A WITNESS.

NOT EASILY MATCHED.

Burrell, Comstock & Co.'s New Goods.

This house, usually the first to bring out novelties in fine furniture, has been packed from bottom to top with the very best goods that can be manufactured for the spring trade, and no shop worn-old-styled furniture can compare with it, however elegant. As a great deal of this superannuated stuff is being pushed before the public buyers should be especially careful in selecting furniture this spring, as dealers are making big efforts to get rid of unsalable goods by heavy sales. Parties in need of good and new furniture can get it at less than auction goods at the old reliable house of Burrell, Comstock & Co.

New Accusations.

Henry Blum took out a warrant this morning for the arrest of Jacob Schlupsckey, whom he accuses of an assault and battery. Henry Blum lives at 807 North Seventh street, and the defendant resides at the same place. They had a personal contest on the 10th inst., and the warrant is one of its results. The defendant gave bond and will have an examination on the 18th. Lizzie Smith, living on the corner of Main and Dorcas streets, lost $19 on the 11th of the present month, which sum she claims was taken by Henry Platz. He was accordingly arrested and will have a hearing on the charge of petit larceny on the 15th inst. A warrant was taken out for the arrest of Mattie Wilson, alias Frances Davis, for stealing $475 from Schmidt on Almond street yesterday afternoon. Mollie is now in jail charged with grand larceny.

The Great Furniture Sale.

Weber's third and last auction sale of rich furniture takes place Monday and Tuesday next, on the second floors of 412 and 414 Pine street. There never has been such a line of furniture offered at auction in this city before. Over 100 parlor and chamber suits and beautiful patent rockers, easy chairs, French plate mirrors, desks, office chairs, tables, stands, book-cases, fine lounges, odd chairs, etc., etc., will be sold. Goods now open for inspection. Catalogues can be had of Messrs. Block, Tyler & Co., the auctioneers. Ladies may all attend these sales with impunity, as many of our best citizens will be present. The salesrooms are the largest, cleanest, and finest in the country. Front of the store reserved for carriages on days of sale.

New Buildings.

C. Hufer is building a small brick dwelling on the northwest corner of Fifteenth and Mallinckrodt streets at a cost of $900.

J. Peters will shortly build a $4,900 furniture factory, four stories, on the northeast corner of Chambers and Fifteenth streets.

Louis Miller will soon build a seven room dwelling on the south side of Cass between Spring and Grand avenues, to cost, when completed, $2,800.

G. Philber is making an addition to his machine shop, on the north side of Mulberry between Third and Fourth streets, at an expense of $900.

A permit was issued to-day to J. A. Bailly to erect a $4,000 brick dwelling, of nine rooms, on the north side of Lucas street, between Page and Channing avenues.

Fun for Boys.

Bicycles and velocipedes in large quantities are being sold at Simmons Hardware Company.

Circuit Court Notes.

This is a long day in Nos. 4 and 5.

Mayer Goldsoll was on the witness stand in No. 3 this afternoon.

The case of the School Board vs. J. Krieger, Jr., is tediously progressing in No. 1.

Capt. Dan Able got his discharge this morning as agent in charge of the Home Mutual Insurance Company, and was allowed at the rate of $150 a month for his services.

EADS' ARGUMENT,

Made Before the House Committee on Interoceanic Canal,

In Reply to the Address of the Count de Lesseps.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—As the St. Louis public will be very generally interested to know what James B. Eads said in reply to M. de Lesseps before the House Committee on Interoceanic Canal, a synopsis of his argument is here given. The St. Louis engineer was listened to with profound attention, and his argument in behalf of a ship railway made a strong impression. Capt. Eads said:

In commenting upon the project of Count de Lesseps, I shall consider the subject simply as an engineering one, and in relation to its practicability; its probable cost; the time needed for its completion; and its utility when completed.

The question of the practicability of opening a tide level waterway through the American Isthmus is simply a question of money and of time. If sufficient money were supplied, and time enough were given, I have no doubt that, instead of the narrow and tortuous stream which Count de Lesseps proposes to locate at the bottom of an artificial canon to be cut through the Cordilleras at Panama, engineers could give to commerce a magnificent strait through whose broad and deep channel the tides of the Pacific would be felt on the shore of the Caribbean Sea, and through which the commerce of the next century might pass unvexed, from ocean to ocean. * * *

Hence any intelligent engineer, having a just conception of the immense capabilities of his art, will at once concede that it is entirely possible to cut the little passage through the Isthmus of Panama, twenty-eight feet below the ocean level, as proposed by M. de Lesseps, provided the money be supplied to meet the cost. But if an engineer be asked to estimate accurately the cost of such a cut, he will tell you that there is one important element of expense in the plan which it is impossible to ascertain with any degree of accuracy. He will tell you that so long as the bottom of the canal is kept above the ocean level the average will enable him to estimate with some degree of certainty the probable quantity of drainage water that must be taken care of to enable the work to progress uninterruptedly. But when the ocean itself is tapped, as it must be in cutting the canal twenty-eight feet below its surface, natural methods of drainage become impossible, and the quantity of water which will probably enter through veins and fissures below the ocean level, in the uplifted and disturbed stratification of the Cordilleras, through which the canal is to be cut, is an unknown quantity, which engineering science cannot determine in advance.

True, an estimate may be made, as indeed it has been, by the engineers employed by M. de Lesseps. They have agreed upon the sum of $168,000,000 as the ultimate cost of the work, exclusive of interest during construction, but experience has shown such estimates quite unreliable, and are always much below the actual cost. I believe that the estimates for the construction of the Suez Canal were $40,000,000, while its actual cost was upwards of $90,000,000. When the

was to be built, every system of bridge construction was examined to ascertain the cheapest method of building it, and various modifications of the plans were tried for the purpose of lessening its cost. A tunnel under the river was likewise considered. The result of all these studies was the erection of the present structure. The bridge proper, including the stone arches on each bank of the river, but exclusive of the tunnel and approaches, cost almost exactly $5,000,000, which was about 20 per cent more than the estimate for it. The actual cost, however, was more than doubled by the items of interest, commission, discount, legal expenses, etc., which had to be paid. These items were omitted by M. De Lesseps, and formed no part of the estimate of the cost of his canal, which he gave to the committee yesterday; and, although they cannot be properly said to be items of engineering, or even such as can be controlled by engineers, yet the fact is that they are inseparable from all great works. In the case of the St. Louis bridge the three first of these items above cost the company $5,000,000, or as much as the entire cost of the bridge itself.

HIS REASONS.

Capt. Eads submitted ten distinct reasons to show that the railway method was entirely practicable and that it can be built in one third or one quarter of the time needed for the construction of a canal. In concluding he said: "I am ready to establish the correctness of these propositions before the committee, and to answer any objections to them which may be urged by experts or others, at any time."

You will find the boss shirt cutter, Jones, and the boss line of French Shirtings, at A. McElrath's, 509 N. Sixth street.

An Incident.

Yesterday morning, shortly after Count de Lesseps' party arrived at the Union Depot, the Count, while sitting in the lunch-room, was approached by a small, sore-eyed, dirty creature, which attempted to articulate something which sounded very much like "Gish her Counderleshups?" at the same time drawing a japanned coat sleeve across a mucus-besmeared nose. The Count, with a look of ineffable contempt, turned toward Mr. Appleton and said: "C'est tres drole! Est-ce un singe?" Then he continued to say that during the time that he was engaged in constructing the Isthmus of Suez he found great relaxation in studying the habits of the Simiadæ indigenous to that country. He had made an especial study of the imitative and prehensile faculties of the common bald-faced ape, and had often wondered why they had not been utilized as reporters for morning newspapers. He said that they were naturally inclined to dirt and lechery, were tricky and pediculous, and only learned by induction. They were also impudent and ill-mannered and full of deceit, and only lacked the power of speech to be accomplished liars. Mr. Appleton smiled and remarked to the garrulous Frenchman that the creature standing before them tugging at its dilapidated hat rim was a reporter connected with the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. "Oh," said the Count, "the monkey of the far West has the power of speech, then, and is employed to perform menial work! How interesting!" And the savan took out his note book and made an entry under the head of Natural History, after carefully scanning the wretched creature, which showed a disposition to curl around his table leg and go to sleep.

A Card to the Public.

So much curiosity has been expressed by the public at large to view the interior workings of our immense establishment, that we have determined to set aside the evening of March 15, 1880, in order to welcome them in a befitting manner. Our immense trade has, up to this time, prevented the tender of a formal reception. So, in order to give all an opportunity to visit our large and commodious business house, we have departed from the customary routine of "Spring Openings," and tender you an elegant Dress Reception and Musical Soiree. Hoping to see you all on the occasion in question, we remain, as ever,

FAMOUS.

N. B.—NO GOODS SOLD ON THIS OCCASION. IN CASE OF FALLING WEATHER, RECEPTION WILL BE POSTPONED TO FOLLOWING EVENING. OUR ESTABLISHMENT WILL CLOSE AT 3 P. M. ON MONDAY EVENING, IN ORDER TO COMPLETE PREPARATIONS FOR OUR RECEPTION.

MONEY.

Another quiet day at the banks, with nothing going on outside of the usual routine business. The amount of paper discounted was small, but banks reported that they had enough demand for money to meet what they cared about loaning. While the feeling is still comfortable, a moderate increase to the present demand might have a stiffening effect. Rates ruled steady at 8@10 per cent. Orders for currency were light and more being received than sent away. New York exchange was firm and in demand, with the supply fair. Sales were at par to 25c premium.

Robert E. M. Bain, Foreign Exchange, 104 N. Breadstuffs and Provisions.

MORNING BOARD—FUTURES.

Wheat—At opening the tone was stronger and sales were made at higher rates, but subsequently weakened and declined, there being a decided drop immediately after call, and during the balance of the session the market was weak, closing slow and below yesterday's close. Cash No. 2 red sold at $1 22⅝@1 22, closing at $1 22⅛; March at $1 22⅜@1 22⅛; April at $1 23@1 23⅛—early $1 23¾ bid; May at $1 25⅜@1 24⅜; June at $1 21⅝—late $1 20½ asked; July early at $1 09¼; August at $1 05 and year at $1 02½, but none worth that at close.

CATTLE—Transactions this forenoon were quite large and about to the extent of the supply. The attendance of buyers at the yards fair, and who braved the heavy snow-storm as heroically as the philosophical live stock reporter of the POST-DISPATCH. All classes of buyers wanted stock, but again the same grades as mentioned for the past two or three days, namely, mixed butchers' stuff and light to medium native steers. These grades in moderate supply, and all offered changed hands early in the day at strong prices and the wants of buyers were but half filled. Coarse and heavy native steers of 1,400 to 1,500 lbs in light supply and dull of disposal and are still held in ill repute by shippers. A member of a commission firm, who is a little tender-footed and always in favor of giving more points to St. Louis than she deserves, found fault with our report of yesterday, wherein we stated that good fat steers were dull and dragging. We are right; and again repeat that heavy native steers of 1,400 to 1,500 lbs were slow this forenoon, and hard to work off at low prices. This statement has stirred up some shippers, and they now say that on next Monday and Tuesday they want good and prime heavy native steers of 1,400 to 1,600 lbs, but what prices they will pay remains to be seen. Stock and feeding steers, like butcher steers, scarce and wanted at the quotations given below. Milch cows with calves in light supply and fair demand. Ruling quotations firm on all grades except coarse and heavy steers. Prime and fancy native steers in demand.

City Hall Notes.

The sums paid into the City Treasury footed up $3,767 60.

There were nine burial permits issued from the Health Department to-day.

John Lambert, a non-resident, arrived in the city yesterday and imbibed too much bad whisky for his own good. About 12:40 o'clock this morning he called at the Dispensary and had a badly smashed face dressed. It was the result of a fall while under the bad whisky's influence.

Health Commissioner Francis has just drawn up a set of rules governing the Dispensary, among which is the following pertaining to outside physicians: "Prescriptions by outside physicians to indigent persons, when the physician certifies that he has given his services gratuitously, shall be filled at the Dispensary, provided all such prescriptions are written on blanks furnished by the Dispensary, and no other kind shall be recognized and filled."

THE GOLDSOLL TRIAL.

Progress of the Case in the Circuit Court To-day.

The case of the Chatham National Bank of New York against Mayer Goldsoll was on trial before a jury in Judge Boyle's room of the Circuit Court to-day. As is already known, the suit was instituted on account of a draft for some $7,000 made by Goldsoll and assigned to the Broadway Savings Bank. It was discounted in New York by the Chatham National Bank, and when presented to the drawee was refused payment, whereupon the Chatham National Bank attached some of Goldsoll's property here. It was just at the time of the failure of the Broadway Savings Bank of this city, and Goldsoll was just then very busy making assignments of the contents of his various stores in Texas. The suit now in progress is to test the validity of these assignments in the face of the attachments made by the Chatham National Bank. It is claimed by the plaintiff that the attachments are good because Goldsoll was at the time attempting to get rid of his property for the purpose of hindering, defrauding and delaying his creditors.

Messrs. Lee & Chandler appeared to-day for the plaintiff and Judge Chester H. Krum and Mr. Binswanger for the defendant.

Mr. Goldsoll, who has so often been wanted but could not be found, was present, and took a most active interest in all that was said and done.

The case for the plaintiff was presented to the jury yesterday afternoon, and after Judge Krum had made his opening speech this morning Mr. Binswanger, the first witness for the defense, was put on the stand, and in his direct examination gave an account of what he had done for Mr. Goldsoll as his attorney.

He was cross-examined very closely by Major Lee in regard to the trip he took to Texas last summer to assist Goldsoll in making the assignments of goods at Dennison and Sherman. One very interesting fact drawn out was, that Binswinger had deducted $1,000 from the property assigned at Sherman for his fee.

"Do you not consider that a large fee for simply going down to Texas and attending to those assignments?" asked Maj. Lee.

"It was a liberal fee, but not too much for the kind of work done," replied the witness.

THE SNOW STORM.

How "Old Probs" Deceived the Public.

Predictions of Snowy and Wintry Weather for March and April.

"Old Probs" must have been dozing last night, for he woefully betrayed the confidence of his trusting followers. "Weather colder and cloudy," was O. P.'s prophetic utterance, but not a word did he mutter of snow or sleet. Consequently confiding humanity went to bed entirely unprepared for the meteorological metamorphosis which occurred during the dawning hours of the day. When paterfamilias arose this morning and pulled back the window curtains he started all aghast. Snow, snow, everywhere greeted his vision, and he believed himself transported into the Land of the Laps. Wintry weather had come at last, and Paterfamilias shrugged his shoulders and shivered as he thought of the bodily discomforts that would attend him down town. The early cars were crowded beyond their capacity—the passengers were packed tight as sardines; men hung on to the platform in the most impossible positions and every square inch of vantage ground was utilized. The horses steamed as they tugged their heavy extra loads, as few of the cars were provided with additional horses. Very few ladies ventured out during the day and the only pedestrians to be seen were of the sterner sex, and they muffled up their ears with their ulster collars, and ensconced their hands deep down in the depths of their pockets. The wind was blowing strong in a southerly direction and those going northward were almost blinded with the eddying flakelets of snow. A partial cessation of heavy traffic took place, as only those goods which pressingly needed transportation were handled. Up town the streets were one extent of glistening whiteness, but the down town and business thoroughfares presented the usual slushy appearance. The continual traffic soon converted the snow into pulpy slush.

ADVENT OF THE STORM.

The Snow King made his advent in St. Louis precisely at 6:15. He had sent an avant courier in the form of a sleet-fall, which commenced at 4:15 a. m. and acted as a precursor of the snow-storm. The cold weather set in from the northwest yesterday and the day before. Directly north the snow-fall has been light, but it is general in the East, while in the South heavy rains have occurred. At Memphis, for instance, 3.33 inches of rain fell during the last twenty-four hours, 2.75 inches having fallen in eight hours. At Nashville 1.58 inches of rain fell in eight hours. At Cairo 1.09 inches fell in 24 hours, and at Shreveport 1.13. In fact, throughout the South there have been heavy rains, but in the North no precipitation has so far taken place. Throughout the country during the last 24 hours the weather has been cloudy and threatening, accompanied by high northeast winds, high and rising barometer, and in the Northwest a relative humidity averaging between 90 and 100, which shows that the atmosphere is very humid. The temperature during the night was 3° below zero at Yankton, and 20° above at Virginia City. There seems to be a cold wave passing off toward the north, toward British America, and it is the southern limit of this wave that has struck St. Louis. It is hardly expected that the weather will clear up for a day or two. Here at 6 o'clock this morning the temperature was 34° above zero, but at noon it had fallen seven degrees to 27°.

PREDICTIONS FOR MARCH AND APRIL.

In this connection the following weather predictions for March and April, made by Mr. Henry G. Vennor, of Montreal, of the Geographical Survey of Canada, and an experienced meteorologist, whose predictions during the past four or five years have been almost unvaryingly fulfilled, will be of interest. It was published in last Saturday's New York Tribune:

"April I sketch as entering cold and stormy, with snow up to the 4th or 5th day, after which cold rains may continue to about the 10th, the 3d and 4th days being probably the most wintry. I foresee a cold term ending in a heavy snowfall on the 15th, 16th and 17th days of March, the 16th and 17th to be the days of snowfall. This storm period will in all probability reach both Boston and New York, but should cold rains replace snow in these last named cities I shall not be surprised. The third indication I have brings on the 5th, 6th and 7th days of March for both cold weather and snow; the 13th for snow again and the 15th and 16th for cold. Snowfalls are also likely to occur on the 1st or 2nd, 21st and 22nd and the 27th, one of these latter dates giving a general and heavy fall. Between the dates thus given for cold and snow-falls the weather of course may be expected to be mild and spring-like, consequently slush will abound. The stormiest part of March is almost certain to occur after the 18th of the month, and my American friends must excuse me if I again include a moderate and reasonable portion of their territories in this last prediction."

CRIMINAL COURT.

The Cage Murder Case Given to the Jury This Afternoon.

The entire morning session of the Criminal Court was devoted to taking testimony in the trial of Alexander Cage, indicted for the murder of Thomas Royal, whose death resulted from wounds received on the 23d of October, 1879. The assault was made by Cage on the day above mentioned, on the corner of Seventh and Biddle streets. The wounded man was carried into a neighborhood drug store and from that place was conveyed to his home, where he died five days afterwards. This morning in the trial a number of police officers were placed on the stand to impeach the character and creditability of the witnesses who had testified for the defense. The impeaching testimony was [illegible] directed to break down the evidence [illegible] Mary Jennings and Nellie Parker, who testified that the deceased, Royal, had first struck the prisoner Cage with a pair of brass knuckles before the latter stabbed him with a knife. At the conclusion of the testimony, which was completed at 11 o'clock, the Court read his instructions to the jury. The arguments were then commenced by Col. Murphy in behalf of the State. He took the ground that the homicide was a deliberate murder, and touched upon the important testimony of McNamara the blacksmith to prove that view. He also elaborated upon the dying confession of Royal to substantiate the conclusion that Cage was the aggressor in the row which resulted in Royal's death. When Col. Murphy had concluded his remarks the court adjourned for one hour. This afternoon on the convening of court T. D. Turner made his argument in behalf of the prisoner, Cage. He contended that the homicide was in self-defense and his remarks were based on this conclusion. Col. Normile concluded for the State, and when he had ended his remarks, the case was given to the jury.

COURT OF CRIMINAL CORRECTION.

Various Victims Consigned to Punishment by Judge Cady.

This morning Judge Cady sentenced Ellen Dunn to eight months in the Work-house for stealing an overcoat from W. C. Urquhart, corner of Sixth and St. Charles streets, on the 9th of the present month. Mollie Pettis waived an examination on a charge of stealing $150 from James Clinton, of No. 1106 North Thirteenth street. In default of $800 bail she was sent to the jail. Kate Harney was arrested on the 10th inst., at the instance of J. M. Glassmeyer, of No. 2706 Sheridan avenue, for obtaining $1 20 worth of groceries under false pretenses. The examination of the case this morning resulted in discharging the prisoner, as the evidence was conclusive of her innocence. James Donovan was accused of stealing $20 from Dennis O'Leary, of 617 Chestnut street. This morning for this theft Donovan was sentenced to a term of six months in jail. Rudolph Fisher was found guilty of stealing sixty pounds of iron from the Iron Mountain Railroad on the 9th of March. He was accordingly sent to jail for one month. Nannie Dunlap will spend the next month in the Work-house on account of stealing several tools from Thomas Keenan, of Twenty-first and Carr streets, on the 3d of the present month. Michael Keenan was sentenced to six months in the Work-house for taking a carpenter's boring machine from W. D. Marshall, of No. 1119 Chambers street.

NULLA BONA.

The Singular Entry After Bondsmen's Names in the Circuit Clerk's Office.

Some of the Peculiarities of Giving Security for Costs.

For years past the course of justice in St. Louis has been hampered and impeded by the insufficient and worthless bonds given in criminal cases. This matter has engaged the attention of several grand juries, and as a result the Criminal Courts are almost emancipated from the nuisance. A different form of the straw bond business, however, has taken root and flourished in the Circuit Courts. It has become customary for attorneys to go on the bond of their clients, giving security for costs, and when the case is lost and the costs are to be collected the attorney refuses to pay and the Sheriff makes a return of nulla bona.

Of late this method of "getting cases into court" has grown into such a common occurrence that the fee bill books bristle with returns showing nothing seizable belonging to the bondsmen. The most common form which this takes occurs when foreign corporations begin litigation in St. Louis. Their attorneys here generally offer themselves as security for costs and are accepted. Most of these bondsmen are perfectly good financially, but refuse to pay the costs and the return nulla bona is accordingly entered. Hereafter a much closer examination will be made into a proposed security's attachable assets before he will be received as a security, and efforts will be made to get the Bar Association to take up this matter and two recent cases of a similar character where attorneys collected costs from their clients and then pocketed the money. The result of this method of doing business is, that in a great number of cases witnesses and officers of the courts are altogether out of their fees.

In looking over the public records in the Court-house a POST-DISPATCH reporter this morning came across the following facts, which might be lengthened out indefinitely. Only a couple of volumes were looked into, and the other books in the Clerk's office would swell the list.

RETURNED NULLA BONA.

In the case of J. D. Brownlee against Chas. Hewitt, W. H. Clopton was security for costs, which aggregated $123. The Sheriff's return, February 13, 1880, was nulla bona. Several returns of this nature are in against L. A. McGinnis, Esq., and yet on Monday last he was again accepted by Judge Wickham as security for costs in the case of Liggett against the Anheuser Brewing Association. The case of Peter F. Luke against John McCloskey threw the costs, $63, upon Jesse B. Woodward, Esq., the security. Of these the Sheriff's and clerk's fees were paid and a nulla bona entered as to the balance. The Farmers' and Drovers' Insurance Company against H. A. Todd were taxed with $28 25 costs, and a return of nulla bona was made upon the security, J. P. Colby, Esq. The company subsequently paid $16 75 of this, but the balance is still unpaid. There were $211 50 costs in the case of Henry T. Sparling against John Riley. Part of this was paid and nulla bona was entered as to the balance. W. C. Marshall, Esq., was the security. Jos. P. Colby appears again as a nulla bona bondsman in the case of W. Allison against Joseph T. Tatum. In the case of S. L. Warren against Jas. T. Garland, John H. Terry was security for costs and nulla bona was entered. In the State to the use of W. W. Jilz against John A. Watson a return of nulla bona again appears. R. S. MacDonald, Esq., was the security. R. M. Funkhouser against S. B. Eveland; E. J. White, Esq., security; again a nulla bona. The case of D. Williams against Manetho Hilton is the cause of a similar entry about Messrs. Pattison and Dooley. R. S. MacDonald appears again as nulla bona in the case of Mary Reed against Peter Philippart. Jos. R. Tatum, Esq., also figures on the books in several places in the same role. No adequate idea can be formed without an exhaustive search of the books about the thousands and thousands of dollars which are due to witnesses and others and unpaid. And it is only fair to the gentlemen named above to say that they are by no means alone, but in the profession it is the rule rather than the exception to go on these security bonds, and when the client does not pay up the lawyer very naturally thinks that he ought not to be made to pay for his client's litigation.

The Champion Belt.

The following letter, which was received this morning, explains itself:

CAIRO, ILL., March 10, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DEAR SIR—I am instructed by the Six-Days Lie-as-You-Please Association of this city to forward you the champion's belt, and it is therefore forwarded by this mail. The association consider that your imaginative young man who wrote up some time since the yarn of wild beasts, lions, etc., loose in Illinois, later the fight between the man and the bull-dog, and lastly the ghost scene or spiritual seance in McDowell's College, has earned the belt for you, and it is hoped that your prolific staff will enable you to keep it long. With sentiments of admiration,

THE SECRETARY.

The belt which accompanied the epistle is a white canvas affair nearly allied to the surcingle of the Texan cowboy or the saddle-girth of the gay vaquero. Its purpose in life before its present apotheosis was evidently the adornment of some Southern Illinois belle, whose fair form has left its impress in the shape of the canvas. The legend borne upon it is significant and complimentary. After examination and admiration on the part of the gentlemen in the office the belt was hung over the desk of Mr. McEnnis, the reporter to whom it rightfully belongs, and he now holds it subject to challenge from any and all quarters.

A BIG INJUNCTION.

The Sale of the Joseph Uhrig Brewing Company to be Restrained.

The Amount Involved Over $130,000.

The sale of the Joseph Uhrig Brewing Company property, which has been advertised to take place to-morrow, will be prevented by an injunction granted by Judge Boyle this morning, in Circuit Court room No. 3. The bill praying for an injunction was presented to Judge Boyle yesterday, and the style of the case is Herman A. Haeussler, assignee of the United States Savings Institution, against the Joseph Uhrig Brewing Company, W. L. C. Brey, trustee of Walburga Uhrig, Walburga Uhrig, widow, and Lucien Eaton, assignee of the Joseph Uhrig Brewing Company. Mr. Haeussler asks for an injunction against the advertised sale of the property, not only for himself as assignee of the United States Savings Institution, but also in behalf of Charles Ehlemann & Co., Charles H. Teichman, Philip Brockmann, Huse, Loomis & Co., the Linze-Smidt Malting Company, William Goeger, George M. Theobald, Nicholas Jost, Hammerstein & Co., William Elliott Smith, Charles Hoppe & Son Malting Company, and Walker Wheeler, all of whom are alleged to be creditors of the Joseph Uhrig Brewing Company. The total amount due to these several creditors is stated to be something near $130,000. Last December a conveyance in trust was made of the property of the Joseph Uhrig Brewing Company to W. L. C. Brey, as trustee for Mrs. Walburga Uhrig. The bill praying for an injunction prays also that this conveyance be set aside, because it was fraudulent and done with a purpose to defraud creditors. It is then asked that an accounting be had and that the property be disposed of for the benefit of all creditors. Judge Boyle took yesterday, with the promise to render a decision this morning. When the matter came up this morning, the Judge seemed inclined to deny the bill because it was presented at such a late hour. Mr. Kehr appeared for the defendant and Col. Slayback for the plaintiff. After a pretty lively discussion upon the part of counsel, and after Col. Slayback had most adroitly put his side of the case, the Court granted the injunction and fixed the bond to be given by plaintiff at $10,000. The order restraining the sale was then drawn up and the matter came to an end. It is one of the largest injunction suits that has been up in the court for some time.

THE APPLICATION UNDER ADVISEMENT
